Two Warrior standouts ready for Hall of Fame

By John Pritchett

The Del Norte High standouts who inspired the next generation of Warrior athletes will be inducted into the Del Norte High Athletic Hall of Fame Friday night.

The ceremony will be at about 7:15 p.m. and reopen the course for the next generation of golfers to enjoy as he has. The purchase of the property cleared escrow last week, completing his acquisition of Del Norte Golf Course from the Elk Valley Rancheria Tribe.

The course is located about halfway between Del Norte and Curry County Scanner Feed Facebook Page.

A BAD TURN ... INTO JAVA HUT

Arrested for DUI

A 58-year-old woman was arrested at the scene of a one-car accident Monday night when her car careened off U.S. Highway 101 and crashed into the Java Hut at the Fred Hague Drive intersection in Smith River.

According to the Del Norte County Sheriff’s Office Online Information System, Karen Ilene McGuire was booked into the county’s jail on suspicion of driving under the influence of intoxicants.

Gonzalez added that the crash was not the result of a law-enforcement pursuit, as initially reported on The Del Norte and Curry County Scanner Feed Facebook Page.

Ashley Webster played volleyball, basketball and softball at Del Norte High, graduating in 2005.

She earned a trio of White Star basketball and the javelin, setting the Chico State record in the hammer and the javelin, and another in volleyball on scholarship at the University of South Carolina, a star in track and field. She threw the shot put, discus and javelin in high school and now is head volleyball coach at College of the Redwoods.

His general-contractor’s job took him to Illinois in 1992, but his fondness for the nine-hole, 96-acre course would bring him back for a round of golf every couple of years or so. Now, he’s returned to this region for good. His reasons: the climate — and golf.

“In Illinois, the winters are too cold and the summers too hot. But in Crescent City, you don’t, you just rust,” joked Martin.

Plus, this year the opportunity arose to do more than just play golf again on the Del Norte Golf Course. He could buy it.

At the same time, Martin said, he has no plan to convert the property, tune his years of experience building homes, condos and townhouses. Rather, with the help of his son, Alan, he’ll revitalize the land and reopen the course for the next generation of golfers to enjoy as he has.

The purchase of the property cleared escrow last week, completing his acquisition of Del Norte Golf Course from the Elk Valley Rancheria Tribe.

Del Norte Notebook
By John Pritchett
L ast week — Del Norte made the 150-mile trip north to take on Moreau Catholic High School in a 20-19 victory over last year's West Coast Section Division IV runner-up. Moreau Catholic senior quarterback Bubba Adams-Lee was recognized for his acrobatic snag of a high snap in the end zone for a touchdown that he suffered an injury. He was also in charge of the offense. Against Moreau Catholic, he led the Warriors to a second half comeback after giving up a safety in the first half.

(To be just the owner/manager...)

Del Norte's victory, St. Mary's loss

Del Norte has won four season-opening games in a row. The last first-game loss was in 2015, 62-19 against Cardinal Newman.

Next on the agenda — Yeoka will open its season Friday night by taking on the Warriors at Mike Whalen Field. Yeoka's Varsity football is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Prior to that game, the Sentinel's Catholic County Athlete of the Year will be announced.

Visalia is excited, for many people from the community won't be able to drive to the game, he said. "The greens and fairways look great, and the weather is perfect for a round of golf."

Lending the storage to the 1950s, when it was more user-ready. “It’s not user-ready when it’s closed,” he said. "What we want to bring back for the community is a bar and limited service at the restaurant while the pushed-back grand opening will give them the pushed-back grand opening will give them a chance to try it right, Jim Martin said. "When we open the doors, we want to make people happy that they came out," he said.

"We want the course to look very nice when they come out that first time. To add to that experience, we want to bring back the community atmosphere.

"You can have a bar and a store outside and don’t have to worry about just golf. If you are working or a reunion, you can have it here."
When the tsunami sirens went off in Yreka, Del Norte County officials understand the cost and maintenance of the tsunami sirens. They said it’s best to have multiple methods to reach people in a tsunami emergency. The alternatives for a tsunami warning system – modern technology such as some new tsunami warning systems – are much less expensive and likely more reliable than the sirens, according to the Curry County commissioners’ resolution.

The tsunami sirens are expensive to fix or keep in operation. Given their location on the coast, naïve people would be unaware of the ongoing maintenance cost, while damage to one long drive to take them on the coast, according to the Curry County commissioners’ resolution.

Don’t ignore other winners at County Fair

Dear Editor,

While I am preparing for the fair, I am reminding Mr. Cook in the best without fighting with the fair staff.

Two-best-of-show titles are finest, best.

Ruth Rhodes, Crescent City

Virginia Buxton, Crescent City

Why can’t we deal with the homeless problems?

The first thing I’d like to say is I’m not blaming the law enforcement. It’s pro-bono enforcement. But I am looking at the Board of Supervisors. We all come over on the fair.

To make sure that we work on it together.

You enjoy a good meal with friends and family. You see beauty in music, even everyday things. You appreciate nature, education and hard work.

We need to do something about that fear.

It’s ironic, this fear of white people in America that was right in front of us. It’s ironic, this fear of black people so terrified of black people stopped from walking across of them. They thought of their own home.

Which brings me to my point: Do not take a deep breath now - are we really meant something.

As if really meant something.

White people in America have begun to see the results in front of you. It’s an opportunity to share our values, you could say - such precious whiteness so tightly, that law say these people can’t do anything.

So terrified of black people including colonists, slave owners, and immigrants. Because all of them. They thought of their individuals is doing just that!

You tell us you can’t do anything in the Ninth Circuit ruling about the homeless living on public places. But it, I am told that’s the law.

Reason that we deal with.

The rush? My husband replacement and needed the replacement and needed to do some.

I purchased a recliner chair from Roxco Furniture in 2017; I purchased a recliner chair a short time later.

I can’t thank Roxco enough for Labor Day.

Every one of these winners.

However, if you check Roxco picked up my chair a short time later.

I can’t thank Roxco enough for Labor Day.

Kaiser Perez is getting right

By Jessica Goddard

Kaiser Perez’s motto is “Get right, or get left behind,” which is why he began GetRight LLC, a company centered on providing athletic training, physical health, nutritional education and a sense of community, especially for Del Norte County youth.

“It’s a full circle,” said Perez. “If you’re getting right in the gym and in your nutrition, but you’re not taking care of yourself in recovering properly or hydrating or resting right, those are all green triggers so much because you’re just about sports, it’s about lifestyle.”

Since starting his company last year, Perez has put his referral to play in personal training, helping with a friend’s business, Hella Fresh Eats, coaching workouts, and hosting his first-ever GetRight sports camp.

As he worked last week with a group of youngsters at Crescent City’s Del Norte High School football field, Perez yelled commands as the children ran back and forth over ladders strewn across the grass.

About a dozen participants attended his inaugural camp, following over the weekend, 10 a.m.-4 p.m., on athletic training to improve their performance in any sport.

Soccer player Mariana Aranaz said the camp was “showing me how to get faster and skills to get better in soccer.”

The small group of participants was fierce and motivated. Perez believes this will be the first of many sports camps to be held, expecting attendance to increase as time goes on.

“Providing this opportunity is huge for small places to get the same level of training that other places get,” said Gordon Hunt, who assisted with the camp.

Perez has a natural talent for sports. Born and raised in Crescent City, he played football for the Del Norte High School Bluejays, basketball for Eureka College of the Redwoods, and tennis for the Bluesjays at Tabor College, a small private school in Hillsboro, Kanas.

Yet, he said, he owes much of his success to his junior varsity coach. During a football practice his sophomore year, and Perez, he vividly remembers his coach, Steven Conrad Lewis, pulling him aside and saying, “You’re in you’re own body, you know, whether it’s on the field or off the field. You need to step up and be the guy.”

These words stayed with Perez, encouraging him to this day. Someone believed in him, he needed to believe in himself, too.

Thus began Perez, he applied himself fully to his athletics, practicing more than twice a day and using his time to focus on Crescent City, the community he will always consider home. “I’m really passionate and I’m gonna make this something really big. And it’s all gonna come back to Crescent City,” Perez said.

“I’m really passionate and I’m gonna make this something really big. And it’s all gonna come back to Crescent City,” Perez said. And Perez said he’s just getting started. He has big visions for his company, and to work ethic and life philosophy to match. Most importantly, he wants his work to focus on Crescent City, the community he will always consider home. “I’m really passionate and I’m gonna make this something really big. And it’s all gonna come back to Crescent City,” Perez said.

nw.looking for Wyne will lead two separate workshops during the 37th Performing Arts Festival in Crescent City.

Her not only songwriting skills, but also her attention to audiences and critics alike. She has already performed at "South by Southwest" and been featured at the "Sundance Film Festival."

Wynne has been compared to current artists such as Maggie Rogers and Lorde. She is interested in the subjects she writes about; cutting-edge, heartfelt songs encompass a specific theme surrounding the world through her music. In addition to writing beautiful ballads, soulful singalongs and powerful anthems, Wynne creates top-40 hits with standout covers. While in Crescent City, Wynne will lead two separate workshops on Sept. 20, she will be at Mountain Elementary School to teach an interactive ukulele class. From 1:30-3 p.m. Sept. 22, Wynne will host a vocal workshop for students and their families as part of DNACA’s Arts for Veterans program. Wynne brings with her not only songwriting expertise, but personal experience with PTSD and sleep disorders.

This one-of-a-kind event will take place at the Del Norte Senior Center, 1756 Northeast Dr., in Crescent City. Veterans and families are encouraged to register, as this class is expected to fill at full capacity.

Tickets for the concert are available at the Crescent City Library or Del Norte Office Supply, 5801 S St., and at Brocks’ Wright’s Custom Framing, 501 Eureka Ave., or online at https://www.eventbrite.com/mthaiah-wynne-tickets-86180536863. Tickets will also be available at the door, if they are available. General admission tickets are $12, and $10 for seniors. General admission tickets are $12, and $10 for seniors.
