Supervisors ratify emergency declaration

BY DAVID HAYES
Staff Writer

In a special session Friday, March 20, the Del Norte County Board of Supervisors formally ratified an emergency declaration in response to the COVID-19 pandemic. Also, in response to the coronavirus, the board unanimously approved a resolution declaring a local health emergency and an advanced credit sick leave program and telecommuting policy for county employees.

County Administrative Officer Jay Sarina explained as the federal and state governments have already declared emergencies, the county's resolution allows for federal and state funding to flow down to the local agency, if and when Del Norte County becomes eligible for the funds.

"I declared the local emergency seven days ago. We have to have it ratified by the board of supervisors in order for it to be effective," Sarina said.

"The number of confirmed cases continues to escalate dramatically over a short period of time and it is believed that the potential of COVID-19 cases in Del Norte County is an imminent threat and that all citizens, organizations and establishments follow orders and guidance related to COVID-19 as established by federal government,

State of California and local government public health authorities," Del Norte Public Health Officer Dr. Warren Rehwaltd's resolution reads.

As of the meeting Friday, the county had no confirmed cases of COVID-19, according to the County Public Health website. A total of 28 tests have been administered, 15 have returned negative and another 13 await results.

Supervisors also unanimously approved the county's advanced sick leave program; a move County Counsel Elizabeth Cable called a stop-gap measure for employees who don't have sick leave accrual currently.

Governor tells all of California to remain home

BY DAVID HAYES
Staff Writer

Gov. Gavin Newsom issued a shelter in place order on March 19 for California, mandating citizens to stay at home to prevent the spread of the COVID-19 coronavirus. Residents may still venture out to acquire food, prescriptions and medical care.

"We need to bend the curve in the state of California," Newsom said during a news conference. "There's a social contract here. People, I think, recognize the need to do more. They will adjust and adapt as they have."

"This is a moment we need to make tough decisions. This is a moment where we need some straight talk and we need to tell people the truth," Newsom added.

According to the state's coronavirus responses website, <https://covid19.ca.gov/stay-home-except-for-essential-needs>, Newsom's executive order identified 16 essential public sector businesses that may remain open, including:

- Gas stations
- Pharmacies
- Food: Grocery stores, farmers markets, food banks, convenience stores, takeout and delivery restaurants

- Banks
- Laundromats/laundry services

Essential state and local government functions will also remain open, including law enforcement and offices that provide government programs and services.

The order closes the following venues:

- Dine-in restaurants
- Bars/nightclubs
- Entertainment venues
- Gyms and fitness studios
- Public events and gatherings
- Convention centers

The California Highway Patrol dispelled rumors over state actions to limit the spread of the COVID-19 coronavirus. Under Sheriff Bill Steven said the California and Oregon border remains open and the CHP's role will be limited in Governor Gavin Newsom's remain home executive order.

"The border has not been closed, there was no talk of closing the border and the border will not close in the foreseeable future," Steven told The TriPLICATE.

He added the key element in the governor's order remains social distancing.

"As long as folks are practicing it, everything should remain fine. If groups are growing, we will not arrest or cite them. Rather we'll take an education standpoint if needed. 'Hey, should probably not gather.' But I don't think in Del Norte County we have to worry about that. We won't see anyone going against social distancing rules," Steven said.

Crescent City finalizes its cannabis ordinance

BY DAVID HAYES
Staff Writer

After nearly two and a half years of back and forth with the Planning Commission, the City Council adopted a new commercial cannabis ordinance on March 16.

Due to social distancing guidelines for the COVID-19 outbreak, Mayor Pro Tem Heidi Kime, Councilmember Isaiah Wright and Public Works Director Jon Olson all participated by online teleconference tool Zoom.

The ordinance outlines under chapter 17.95 to the city's Municipal Code requirements for prospective retailers, including:

- Operating at least 600 feet from a K12 school and a formal daycare center.

- It allows commercial cannabis storefront and delivery retail, indoor cultivation and manufacturing in the city's commercial, downtown business, commercial waterfront and highway services districts.

- Indoor cultivation is limited to 2,000 square feet
- Prohibits the use of volatile chemicals in manufacturing.

- Allows for commercial cannabis testing laboratories.

- Prohibits on-site use and outdoor cultivation.
- Prohibits mobile vending or drive-through retail.
- Prohibits off-site advertising within 1,000 feet of schools, daycare centers, youth centers, public libraries and parks.

Councilor Jason Greenough revisited his objection from the Feb. 3 City Council meeting over the 600-foot setback from retailers and youth centers.

"People who are youth are more susceptible to wanting to get a hold of this. The fact is people go into stores and they pick up cigarettes, they pick up booze. They can pick up marijuana from these dispensaries and they can take them outside and sell them to people who ought not have them," Greenough said.

Kime renewed her objection to setbacks from youth centers for cannabis retailers, stating her belief it would not protect children.

"If children are going to get this, they're going to get it illegally. If you truly want to protect children, you will do absolutely everything to make this reasonable and easy for these businesses to come out of the darkness and into the light," Kime argued.

Greenough made another motion on Monday, echoing his failed attempt Feb. 3, to require the ordinance to have a 600-foot setback from retailers and youth centers. Again, Wright seconded Greenough's motion, but the vote failed again by a 2-3 vote with Kime, Mayor Blake Inscore and Councilor Alex Fallman dissenting.

Where they did agree is setting operating hours for cannabis retailers from 6 a.m. to 10 p.m., which was in line with the state's recommended guidelines, rather than the city staff's recommendation of 8 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Kime said she didn't remember seeing regulations governing operating hours in previous commercial cannabis discussions.

"The market should guide a business owner's determination of when to be open. During the summer people are still driving into town at 9 p.m. when

Sutter Coast Hospital addresses COVID-19 concerns

Sutter Health is working closely with county, state and federal agencies, including local county health departments and the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC), to address the evolving COVID-19 situation.

Several measures are underway at Sutter Coast Hospital, which includes restricting visitors, postponing all elective surgeries that can be safely rescheduled, and keeping staff and affiliated physicians prepared for and informed about local health department and CDC guidance.

Also, a care tent is available and is ready to be deployed if the need arises.

"Sutter Coast and other hospitals across our Sutter network have a long history of caring for patients with complex illnesses, including infectious diseases," said Mitch Hanna, CEO of Sutter Coast Hospital. "Our teams are trained and equipped to provide high-quality care while protecting the safety of our patients, care providers, hospital staff and other teammates."

To protect vulnerable patients at Sutter Coast and healthcare workers and providers, Sutter Health is restricting visitors from its hospitals until further notice. Exemptions include laboring mothers, end-of-life visitation, visits to pediatric patients, and supporting those patients with disabilities.

These steps align with recent recommendations made by the State of California and some local departments of public health. Sutter is also

Commercial Dungeness Crab Fishery Update: Entanglement Risk Low, Fishery to Remain Open

The California Department of Fish and Wildlife (CDFW) updated the status of the commercial California Dungeness crab fishery which includes the Northern Management Area (Fish and Game Districts 6, 7, 8 and 9) and Central Management Area (Fish and Game Districts 10 and south).

On March 9, the California Dungeness Crab Fishing Gear Working Group was convened to review current data and conduct an updated risk assessment to evaluate the risk of marine life entanglement.

The working group provided a consensus recommendation that the risk remained low across all four risk factors. Informed by this recommendation and after careful consideration of available data, the CDFW director determined that no management action is necessary at this time; the season will remain open on April 1 for both the Northern and Central Management Areas.

The director and the working group encourage the fleet to continue to use best practices when fishing and to be ready to quickly respond to a management change when significant numbers of whales return to the fishing grounds, typically in April or May each year.

For the remainder of the commercial season, CDFW will continue to collect data to inform bi-weekly risk assessments by the working group. Based on that process, CDFW will likely take additional management actions in response to future risk assessments.

Management action may occur at any time as conditions related to entanglement risk change.

For more information related to the risk assessment process, go to CDFW's Whale Safe Fisheries page at <https://wildlife.ca.gov/Conservation/Marine/Whale-Safe-Fisheries>.

Animal shelter remains open for adoption despite COVID-10 concerns

BY DAVID HAYES
Staff Writer

In the wake of the COVID-19 health emergency, the Del Norte Animal Shelter has canceled its once a month, Saturday adoption events.

But Justin Riggs, Director of Animal Control, said this is due to concerns of the spread of the coronavirus from humans and not pets.

"Under the latest guidelines from the Del Norte County Public Health officer, we've canceled all Saturday adoption events until we receive further guidance that dictates it's OK to do so," Riggs told The TriPLICATE. "I've checked with all three vets in town. They've all said there is not a risk of this spreading from dogs to humans, but who knows at this point."

The World Health Organization reported on its website www.who.int/news-room/q-a-detail/q-a-coronaviruses while there has been one instance of a dog being infected in Hong Kong, to date, there is no evidence that a dog, cat or any pet can transmit COVID-19.

"COVID-19 is mainly spread through droplets produced when an infected person coughs, sneezes or speaks. To protect yourself, clean your hands frequently and thoroughly. WHO continues to monitor the latest research on this and other COVID-19 topics and will update as new findings are available," WHO stated.

For now, the animal shelter remains open for appointments to view adoptable dogs. Riggs said his staff will practice social distancing guidelines.

"They can still show dogs, but it was not wise to encourage a bunch to come out at a time at the adoption events," Riggs said.

The Del Norte County Animal Shelter, located at 2650 Washington Blvd., lifted its quarantine last month due to an outbreak of giardia in December.

Riggs planned to move the shelter's once-a-month adoption events from the second to the third Saturday of the month as this would conflict less with other regional public events.

He said the shelter has been operating continuously "over building capacity" with every available space filled by rescued dogs.

The shelter remains open weekdays from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., with viewing time ending at 4 p.m.

Petfinder.com has a link to photos and bios for many of the dogs available for adoption.

Riggs said the shelter recently switched to a flat $75 adoption fee, which comes with a home visitation check first in some cases.

During the giardia outbreak, Riggs said the shelter had to shut down volunteer training, to minimize the number of people coming out. Although social distancing guidelines are still in place, the shelter still needs volunteers. Riggs said if you have signed up in the past to volunteer, call the shelter at 464-7235 to verify staff still has your application on file or they can email you a new one.

Riggs added anyone looking to support the animal shelter beyond volunteering, it has a "wish list" for what of needed donations from gift cards, can food and leashes. Contact the shelter and staff can email you the list.

Hector Santos Ortega, of CC Mobile Technology Repair, is also looking to help the animal shelter. He told The TriPLICATE in addition to the usual percentage of his sales he donates to help the animal shelter purchase food and supplies, this month he is donating $5 for every screen protector sold to help them purchase a picnic table.

Del Norte Superior Court cancels all proceedings through April 2

The Del Norte County Superior Court has closed operations effective March 20 through April 1 in response to the emergency declaration from the County Public Health Director.

Presiding Judge Darren McElfresh issued the implementation order March 19, according to the emergency powers granted him by California Chief Justice Tani G. Cantil-Sakauye.

As a result, all civil and criminal trials are suspended through April 17 and no jurors are to report until April 20.

The court will reopen April 2 for emergency and essential matters only. Court officials reminded the public that while proceedings are open to the public, restrictions are in place to reduce the number of individuals in the courtroom to 10 or less with appropriate social distancing.

The court asks everyone not to come to the courthouse unless advised to be there by your attorney. If you represent yourself, the court asks you to call them before your scheduled appearance date.

As developments change, additional information will be posted on the Del Norte Superior Court website www.delnorte.courts.ca.gov.

County health officer urges residents to practice social distancing

BY DR. WARREN REHWALDT
Del Norte County Public Health Officer

As you know, I and the county administrator jointly declared a local emergency last week, which is in effect and most likely will be ratified by the Board of Supervisors at their meeting this week. The reasons are obvious, and we are in fact, one of the last counties in California to do this in response to the coronavirus pandemic outbreak. We are still waiting to detect our first case, but the strain on our hospital and clinics is already growing, simply by the demand for testing. Part of the declaration included an order from me for businesses and individuals to follow state of California and federal government guidelines. I worded this as an order under my authority as health officer, to maximize compliance. The state and national strategies of containing a virus of this type depend on universal implementation. There can be no exceptions, even for counties that do not have proven cases of the virus, such as ours. It is well understood that we cannot expect to detect the very first case of COVID-19 in our county; the first case that we identify may represent dozens of cases already in progress. We may have the virus here and have simply not had enough tests done to detect it. All counties in Northern California are operating under this assumption, and all public health departments are implementing similar and sometimes even more stringent restrictions. California was one of the first states to have community spread of this virus, and the progression of cases turning positive in the state has been alarming to medical facilities and health officials at all levels. Mandatory social distancing, by closing dine-in features of restaurants and closing bars, is one major part of the strategy. It simply has to be done, no matter how hard it may be. At the same time, we have seen churches close services, public gatherings shut down and social groups that draw people together realign their programs. At the Health Department, we have gone to conducting meetings by phone or computer, and emergency planning groups that have been active are doing the same. We are doing everything that we can to minimize contacts that can spread the virus, and people need to be doing this now, whether we have the virus in our borders or not. We have heard reports locally and there are stories shared by other counties similar to ours (small, rural and still not reporting COVID-19) that we have become “destinations” for persons trying to leave their state or county where COVID-19 is active. If we have no restrictions on dining and bars, we become even more attractive as a refuge, and people traveling to avoid the virus in their home would likely bring it here. We do not want that. I encourage people to be patient and be vigilant, and if they are sick to stay home, to isolate themselves from their family members as much as possible, and wait until they are completely better. Nobody should assume that they will know if what they have is COVID-19 or not. And, nobody should assume that they need a test. Testing is still very limited; we hope that the situation will be changing in the next few weeks, and if it does, we may be changing our message about this, but for now, people with cold or flu symptoms should stay home, and get better. One more comment about that: We want everyone who has had a cold or flu anytime this month, and going forward, to mark it on their calendar, and make some notes about their symptoms at the time. We are hoping that we can ask people later on in this outbreak to have blood testing done to confirm if they had the coronavirus at some early time in the outbreak. Useful for us in Public Health to know how many have been infected and recovered, and useful to everyone to know that they had it without knowing it at the time, and don't have to worry so much about the future. We are only beginning to make this plan because the testing for this is not yet available, but when it becomes available, it will help us a lot to know this kind of information.

County, city release joint statement about COVID-19 response

Del Norte County Supervisor Chair Gerry Hemmingsen and Crescent City Mayor Blake Inscore gave a joint statement on the COVID-19 response via Facebook Friday. Hemmingsen: “The current emergent conditions related to the COVID-19 virus have placed everyone on edge, disrupted lives and impacted people in ways people in our community have not experienced in years. The COVID-19 virus is very real and can be extremely harmful to individuals and should be taken seriously. However, as we adapt to our new lifestyles, we need to understand the immediate risk and the risk over a period of time. At this time, Del Norte County has had 26 people tested, with 15 negative tests and 11 pending. The projections from the state is we will experience positive tests in the near future. As a local government, we are actively addressing services to the community from the perspective departments. We are continuing those essential services throughout this emergency.

We realize the governor's order has caused more questions and confusion than answers. And this is true in many other counties. To that end, please continue to live your lives with the following prudent measures: Avoid large gatherings, distance yourself from others as recommended, go about your essential business, get your groceries, walk, hike and talk with your family. We can assist the community by avoiding the spread of the virus and have a responsibility to do so. The governor's order is not a shutdown for everything we do. By following these simple steps, we can be a part of the solution, not part of the problem.” Inscore: Our staffs are working diligently to assist local businesses to understand what the order means and what they will be required to do and what the responsible thing to do. The City of Crescent City and Del Norte County, working through the County Office of Emergency Services (OES), are working hard to address all of these concerns. OES is currently at a level two and we are taking all of this very seriously for our community. We are also setting up an economic resiliency section that would be in a position to offer businesses the latest information about funding opportunities and answer any questions as business people they may have. We hope this will streamline that process and reduce some of the stress that is being dumped on our business community. We want for our community to understand that this emergency requires us to avoid large gatherings and we request you follow the public health officer's order regarding social distancing and hygiene and to conduct your lives as normal as possible even with these guidelines. So, when you can stay home, please do so. In times of emergency, it's up to all of us to do our part, for you to do your part. Please reach out to your neighbors, especially the elderly and those who are fragile. Make sure you know what they might need and how you might be able to help. Be patient with workers who are doing their very best to you and to our community. We're all here to help. How we react to emergencies says a whole lot about us as a community. We've faced adversity in the past and we've lived to fight another day. And we're going to do the same thing in this emergency. I also want to assure you on behalf of the City of Crescent City and Del Norte County that this is not a “one-and-done” announcement. We will be here regularly to try and update you, give you updates as we have information. We want you to be informed. And sometimes I know it feels like you're not getting all the information you would like to have. We're here to give you the accurate information. We will give you regular updates. If you have questions, please reach out to the city and the county, let us know your questions and we will do the very best to get that information to you. Thank you. We look forward to speaking to you again and want you to stay safe and healthy.

postponing all elective surgeries in hospitals that can be safely re-scheduled.

This is in line with recommendations from the U.S. Surgeon General and the American College of Surgeons to prepare for a patient surge or increased demand.

Patients will hear directly from the hospital if their procedure is being postponed.

"We appreciate our community's cooperation and efforts to protect the health and safety of our patients, staff and clinicians," Hanna said.

Additional preparations at several Sutter hospitals include setting up surge tents near the emergency departments, which will function in part to limit the general population's interactions with patients who may have potential respiratory illnesses.

Using tents is part of the hospitals' plans to deal with a surge of patients, and their use is approved by the state.

They help prevent the spread of illness to patients and visiting family members, including, for example, during the influenza season.

"We are preparing all of our network hospitals in the event we see a surge in patients due to COVID-19. We are also leveraging the strength of our integrated network to increase our capacity by continuing to educate Sutter patients about the variety of options available to them," Hanna said. "Sutter patients who feel ill should consider a video visit to see if they meet the criteria for testing. If their symptoms are mild or moderate, they do not need testing. We ask they please stay home to prevent further exposure and take care of themselves."

Video visits are available to all Sutter patients through My Health Online, which is accessible at www.sutterhealth.org or through the My-HealthOnline phone app.

Sutter Coast Hospital continues to work closely with county, state and federal agencies, including Del Norte County Public Health and the CDC, to address COVID-19 related issues. Sutter Coast remains committed to patient privacy; Del Norte County Public Health remains the best source for information on confirmed COVID-19 cases.

"Obviously we don't want sick people in the office simply because they're worried about getting paid and being out of accrual during a time of a proclaimed local emergency," Cable said. "They will be able to get advanced credit for up to 80 hours of sick leave and that will allow them to pay that back in the future. It will be a benefit to employees and county workers to have people out of the office with that ability."

Cable said the policy is something the county could use in future emergencies, even though it was proposed to the board in response to the COVID-19 emergency response.

By email, Norma Williams, chapter president of the Del Norte Employees Association, praised both measures, telling the supervisors she met with county representatives March 17 to discuss them.

"We appreciate the effort that county employees work in a safe environment. We applaud all county employees for their dedication and service to the community," Williams said.

DEAR ABBY

BY ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Clash over money threatens to undermine reconciliation

DEAR ABBY: My wife, "Cynthia," and I are a middle-aged couple who have been married four years. Shortly after our wedding, she suffered a stroke during a heart transplant. After she returned home from the hospital, a "friend" told her I was having an affair (I wasn't). Without telling me why, Cynthia threw me out of the house and returned to a distant state to be near her family. She had most of her belongings shipped there.

After I presented proof of my innocence a year later, we reconciled. The first couple of years of marriage were chaotic, and I know I wasn't perfect. But I did the best I could and stood by her throughout the medical ordeal.

Now, Cynthia is saying I should have to pay to have her items shipped back simply because I'm "the man." Abby, we have roughly the same income due to pensions. We have always kept our finances separate. I think she should pay to have her own items returned because she is the one who shipped them over there based on a lie.

The money itself isn't the issue; it's the principle. I feel like this is a slap in the face. What do you think? -- MR. NICE GUY

DEAR MR. NICE GUY: You shouldn't have to pay for anything "because you're the man." You didn't cheat, and you aren't responsible for the fact that Cynthia overreacted and ran away the way she did.

You say that until now you have kept your finances separate because you each have your own incomes. My advice is to refuse to be manipulated. Your wife should pay to have her belongings returned, just as she paid to have them sent away without verifying whether the story was true.

DEAR ABBY: When I was a child, my dad told me, "If it weren't for you kids, there are so many things your mother and I could have." What I remember most was the intensity in his voice.

When I was old enough to work, I had a job after school so I could pay for my own clothes although my family wasn't poor. My father repeatedly let me know I was "lucky" I didn't get taken out of school to help support the family. When I graduated from high school at 17, I immediately went to work, and I paid for my board.

I married at 18 to get out of the house and paid for my own wedding. It never even occurred to me to ask for help. When I ended up divorced, I worked my way through college. When I graduated, my mother had to make my father go to my graduation because he didn't want to.

I have never been able to shake the feeling that I don't have a right to anything, and I'm not good enough. My other siblings are a mess, too. How do I shake this feeling of not being worthy? -- WORTHLESS IN FLORIDA

DEAR WORTHLESS: Children develop their feelings of self-worth from their parents. It appears at least one of yours was missing in action from the time you were little.

I don't have a magic wand, and I can't make the negative message your father implanted in your head disappear. On the upside, your upbringing made you independent, if only out of necessity. It may take help from a licensed mental health professional to make the scars from the way your father raised you fade.

Tolowa Dee-ni' Nation issues emergency declaration, activates response to COVID-19

The Tolowa Dee-ni' Nation Tribal Council on Thursday, March 20, declared a state of emergency as part of a coordinated effort to proactively address the predicted local impacts of the global COVID-19 pandemic.

"We are working diligently to protect the safety of our citizens, our staff and the greater community," said Denise Richards-Padgett, the Chairperson of the Tolowa Dee-ni' Nation. "We are taking every precaution to limit the spread of the pathogen when it arrives in our corner of the world. It is critical to err on the side of caution as we live in a rural area with very limited resources."

The declaration enables the Nation to expeditiously mobilize staff and resources toward ensuring the Tribal government functions effectively during this unprecedented human health emergency.

In addition to issuing the emergency proclamation, the Tribal Council approved a plan to continuously provide Tribal citizens with essential services, such social welfare and housing services, during the crisis.

Declaring a state of emergency is required to activate the Nation's Emergency Operations Plan, which contains a roadmap for navigating the complexities of large-scale crises, such as the coronavirus outbreak.

The Tribal Council is regularly meeting with the Nation's emergency manager and executive team to preemptively identify and develop solutions for any short and long-term challenges that may arise as a consequence of the pandemic.

Tribal leaders are also coordinating with the Del Norte County Office of Emergency Services as well as state and federal agencies involved in the response effort.

Additionally, Tribal staff are already employing a suite of digital tools, including web and teleconferencing, to adhere to social distancing recommendations and to be ready for the implementation of more rigorous mandates to reduce disease transmission rates.

To date, there have been no confirmed COVID-19 cases in proximity to where the Nation is headquartered in Del Norte County.

Last week, the Tribal government postponed all large meetings and social events, based on recommendations from the US Center for Disease Control and Prevention. Additionally, the Nation temporarily suspended the in-classroom component of the Howonquet Head Start and Early Learning Center from March 16 to April 10.

However, the Tribally operated Head Start is offering meals for students Monday through Friday. All Head Start students are also receiving individualized homework packets so that they may continue their educational development for the duration of the crisis.

"We are doing everything we can to maintain the high level of service our community deserves," Chairperson Richards-Padgett said.

COVID-19 is an infectious, respiratory disease caused by the novel coronavirus. First observed in Wuhan City, China, at the end of 2019, the coronavirus quickly spread to 159 countries and caused 7,529 fatalities as of March 17, according to the World Health Organization.

The pathogen is primarily transmitted between people in close contact. It can also be contracted by touching a surface contaminated with the virus and then touching the nose or mouth. People with compromised immune systems, including the elderly and individuals with underlying health conditions, are particularly susceptible to the virus.

In addition to taking actions to limit person-to-person interactions, the Nation is implementing the following measures to lessen the possibility of a calamitous COVID-19 outbreak in Del Norte County:

- Work travel is prohibited for all Tribal employees.
- All social gatherings are postponed until further notice. Increased cleaning and disinfection is occurring at all Tribal facilities.
- All Tribal Committee meetings are postponed until further notice.

To curtail the spread of the virus, the US Centers for Disease Control and Prevention is asking the community to take the following precautions:

- Frequently wash hands with soap and water for a minimum of 20 seconds.
- Avoid touching eyes, nose and mouth with unwashed hands.
- Stay home if you are sick.
- Disinfect commonly used surfaces, such as doorknobs, countertops and light switches.
- Avoid contact with people who appear ill.
- Limit in-person contact with particularly vulnerable individuals, such as the elderly or those with immune system issues.

U.S. Attorney shares tips for avoiding COVID-19 scams

U.S. Attorney Billy J. Williams warned of several new fraud schemes seeking to exploit the evolving coronavirus public health emergency by targeting vulnerable populations.

Scammers have already devised numerous methods for defrauding people in connection with COVID-19. They are setting up websites, contacting people by phone and email, and posting disinformation on social media platforms. Some examples of scams linked to COVID-19 include:

- Testing scams: Scammers are selling fake at-home test kits or going door-to-door performing fake tests for money.
- Treatment scams: Scammers are offering to sell fake cures, vaccines, and advice on unproven treatments for COVID-19.
- Supply scams: Scammers are creating fake shops, websites, social media accounts, and email addresses claiming to sell medical supplies currently in high demand, such as surgical masks. When consumers attempt to purchase supplies through these channels, fraudsters pocket the money and never provide the promised supplies.
- Provider scams: Scammers are contacting people by phone and email, pretending to be doctors and hospitals that have treated a friend or relative for COVID-19, and demanding payment for that treatment.
- Charity scams: Scammers are soliciting donations for individuals, groups, and areas affected by COVID-19.

- Phishing scams: Scammers posing as national and global health authorities, including the World Health Organization (WHO) and the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC), are sending phishing emails designed to trick recipients into downloading malware or providing personal identifying and financial information.
- App scams: Scammers are creating and manipulating mobile apps designed to track the spread of COVID-19 to insert malware that will compromise users' devices and personal information.
- Investment scams: Scammers are offering online promotions on various platforms, including social media, claiming that the products or services of publicly traded companies can prevent, detect, or cure COVID-19, and that the stock of these companies will dramatically increase in value as a result. These promotions are often styled as "research reports," make predictions of a specific "target price," and relate to microcap stocks, or low-priced stocks issued by the smallest of companies with limited publicly available information.

The U.S. Attorney's Office urges Oregonians to take the following precautionary measures to protect themselves from known and emerging scams:

- Independently verify the identity of any company, charity, or individual that contacts you regarding COVID-19.
- Check the websites and email addresses offering information, products, or services related to COVID-19. Be aware that scammers often employ addresses that differ only slightly from those belonging to the entities they are impersonating. For example, they might use "cdc.com" or "cdc.org" instead of "cdc.gov."

- Be wary of unsolicited emails offering information, supplies, or treatment for COVID-19 or requesting your personal information for medical purposes. Legitimate health authorities will not contact the general public this way.
- Do not click on links or open email attachments from unknown or unverified sources. Doing so could download a virus onto your computer or device.
- Make sure the anti-malware and anti-virus software on your computer is operating and up to date.
- Ignore offers for a COVID-19 vaccine, cure, or treatment. Remember, if there is a medical breakthrough, you won't hear about it for the first time through an email, online ad, or unsolicited sales pitch.
- Check online reviews of any company offering COVID-19 products or supplies. Avoid companies whose customers have complained about not receiving items.
- Research any charities or crowdfunding sites soliciting donations in connection with COVID-19 before giving. Remember, an organization may not be legitimate even if it uses words like "CDC" or "government" in its name or has reputable looking seals or logos on its materials. For online resources on donating wisely, visit the Federal Trade Commission (FTC) website.

- Be wary of any business, charity, or individual requesting payments or donations in cash, by wire transfer, gift card, or through the mail. Don't send money through any of these channels.
- Be cautious of "investment opportunities" tied to COVID-19, especially those based on claims that a small company's products or services can help stop the virus. If you decide to invest, carefully research the investment beforehand. For information on how to avoid investment fraud, visit the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) website.
- For the most up-to-date information on COVID-19, visit the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) and World Health Organization (WHO) websites.

On March 19, 2020, U.S. Attorney Williams announced the appointment of a COVID-19 fraud coordinator to lead investigations into known and suspected occurrences of financial fraud related to the nation's ongoing public health emergency.

If you or someone you know believe you've been the target or victim of an outbreak-related fraud scheme, please contact the FBI's Internet Crime Complaint Center (IC3) by visiting www.IC3.gov. If you or someone you know are in immediate danger, please call 911.

Cannabis

it's still light out. Maybe there's someone who doesn't realize they need a product and it's 7:45 and there's no way they can get down there. I just feel like imposing this on a retail business is an overstep of our authority," Kime said.

Inscore feared for the future of the ordinance under the current emergency declaration due to the COVID-19 coronavirus. As it takes 30 days to enact after adoption, or around April 6, Inscore pointed out it would be May before anyone could open a commercial cannabis operation in Crescent City.

He worried staff hours and any fees involved for processing permit applications, which are uncertain at this point and could still be if the social distancing guidelines continue.

"As a way to maybe encourage as seamless a process for potential new businesses as possible, I would ask that maybe we underestimate that and not over-estimate that cost right now," he said.

"The City Council should determine whether the fees should be changed when it sets the city's fee schedule. I would like to make it as easy as possible for a person who is interested in beginning this business. We don't know what that number is going to be. We don't have any way of estimating that."

Olson said at this point, the city does not have "huge expectations" with regard to the number of commercial cannabis operations wanting to open in the city.

"There will be some revenue generated, but we really don't see this as being a huge revenue generator. The city does intend to issue permits based on a cost-recovery model," he said.

Olson explained that a standard conditional use permit is between $600 to $700. He added that since a commercial cannabis operation would likely have enhancements, he expects to recommend starting at $1,000 for the administrative costs to issue and monitor a permit.

Governor

Newsom said during his press conference he expects the order to be enforced not through law enforcement, but rather through social pressure.

"People will ask 'Well, how will you enforce?'" Newsom said. "As I say there is a social contract here, people I think recognize the need to do more and to meet this moment."

"We will have social pressure that will encourage people to do the right thing," he added. "I don't believe the people of California need to be told through law enforcement that it's appropriate just to home isolate, to protect themselves, go about the essential patterns of life, but do so by socially distancing themselves from others and do so using your common sense."

According to a letter Newsom sent to President Trump on March 18, his office expects the COVID-19 virus to infect more than half of California's nearly 40 million people within two months.

The shelter in place order will remain until further notice.

Crescent City Services

During the shutdown order, Crescent City's Manager Eric Wier said city facilities including the Water Department, Public Works Department, Housing Authority, Police Department and Fire Department have closed their public lobbies to the public until further notice.

"The city is dedicated to providing service and has created ways for you to complete your city business remotely," Wier wrote on the city's website. "For details on individual city department closures and how to navigate departmental services, please visit the City website at www.crescentcity.org."

Wier outlined how city services will continue by department.

T.S. No. 088054-CA APN: 120-270-28 NOTICE OF TRUSTEE'S SALE IMPORTANT NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNER: YOU ARE IN DEFAULT UNDER A DEED OF TRUST, DATED 12/22/2006. UNLESS YOU TAKE ACTION TO PROTECT YOUR PROPERTY, IT MAY BE SOLD AT A PUBLIC SALE. IF YOU NEED AN EXPLANATION OF THE NATURE OF THE PROCEEDING AGAINST YOU, YOU SHOULD CONTACT A LAWYER. On 4/14/2020 at 11:00 AM, CLEAR RECON CORP, as duly appointed trustee under and pursuant to Deed of Trust recorded 1/4/2007 as Instrument No. 20070094 of Official Records in the office of the County Recorder of Del Norte County, State of CALIFORNIA executed by: ERNEST B CAPSHAW, A MARRIED MAN AS HIS SOLE AND SEPARATE PROPERTY WILL SELL AT PUBLIC AUCTION TO HIGHEST BIDDER FOR CASH, CASHIER'S CHECK DRAWN ON A STATE OR NATIONAL BANK, A CHECK DRAWN BY A STATE OR FEDERAL CREDIT UNION, OR A CHECK DRAWN BY A STATE OR FEDERAL SAVINGS AND LOAN ASSOCIATION, SAVINGS ASSOCIATION, OR SAVINGS BANK SPECIFIED IN SECTION 5102 OF THE FINANCIAL CODE AND AUTHORIZED TO DO BUSINESS IN THIS STATE: OUTSIDE ON THE STEPS OF THE SOUTHWEST ENTRANCE TO THE FLYNN ADMINISTRATION BLDG. LOCATED AT 981 H STREET, CRESCENT CITY, CA 95531 all right, title and interest conveyed to and now held by it under said Deed of Trust in the property situated in said County and State described as: MORE ACCURATELY DESCRIBED IN SAID DEED OF TRUST. The street address and other common designation, if any, of the real property described above is purported to be: 480 AMADOR STREET CRESCENT CITY, CA 95531 The undersigned Trustee disclaims any liability for any incorrectness of the street address and other common designation, if any, shown herein. Said sale will be held, but without covenant or warranty, express or implied, regarding title, possession, condition, or encumbrances, including fees, charges and expenses of the Trustee and of the trusts created by said Deed of Trust, to pay the remaining principal sums of the note(s) secured by said Deed of Trust. The total amount of the unpaid balance of the obligation secured by the property to be sold and reasonable estimated costs, expenses and advances at the time of the initial publication of the Notice of Sale is: $214,902.59 If the Trustee is unable to convey title for any reason, the successful bidder's sole and exclusive remedy shall be the return of monies paid to the Trustee, and the successful bidder shall have no further recourse. The beneficiary under said Deed of Trust heretofore executed and delivered to the undersigned a written Declaration of Default and Demand for Sale, and a written Notice of Default and Election to Sell. The undersigned or its predecessor caused said Notice of Default and Election to Sell to be recorded in the county where the real property is located. NOTICE TO POTENTIAL BIDDERS: If you are considering bidding on this property lien, you should understand that there are risks involved in bidding at a trustee auction. You will be bidding on a lien, not on the property itself. Placing the highest bid at a trustee auction does not automatically entitle you to free and clear ownership of the property. You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority, and size of outstanding liens that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same lender may hold more than one mortgage or deed of trust on the property. NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNER: The sale date shown on this notice of sale may be postponed one or more times by the mortgagee, beneficiary, trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924g of the California Civil Code. The law requires that information about trustee sale postponements be made available to you and to the public, as a courtesy to those not present at the sale. If you wish to learn whether your sale date has been postponed, and, if applicable, the rescheduled time and date for the sale of this property, you may call (844) 477-7869 or visit this Internet Web site WWW.STOXPOSTING.COM, using the file number assigned to this case 088054-CA. Information about postponements that are very short in duration or that occur close in time to the scheduled sale may not immediately be reflected in the telephone information or on the Internet Web site. The best way to verify postponement information is to attend the scheduled sale. FOR SALES INFORMATION: (844) 477-7869 CLEAR RECON CORP 4375 Jutland Drive San Diego, California 92117
