Police chief says caller was likely out-of-state prankster

Local law enforcement officials continue to investigate a gun threat made during a Redwood Elementary School 8th grade graduation ceremony at Del Norte High School last Wednesday.

The Del Norte County Sheriff's Office received a call from an individual who claimed to be at the ceremony and armed with a rifle and a handgun. The subject then told police they were going "to start shooting," according to a press release from Crescent City police.

Several law enforcement agencies quickly responded, and began escorting people out of the building, as well as searching for the subject.

During a search of the grounds, police apprehended subjects inside a vehicle parked near the school. After questioning the subjects, police determined they were not involved with the incident, and they were released.

After an initial investigation, Crescent City Police Chief Richard Griffin said he believes the call came from an out-of-state prank caller, who intended to "swat" the graduation ceremony. Swatting is the practice of making a fraudulent call to emergency services in an attempt to dispatch a large number of police officers to an address.

Upon reviewing the call, Griffin said there were some obvious clues to point to the caller being an out-of-towner, including their mispronunciation of "Del Norte."

Griffin said similar prank calls were recently made to the San Diego and Dallas, Texas area.

"The person has been doing this around the states apparently; same number, same name," said Griffin.

Crescent City police will continue their investigation in conjunction with the Federal Bureau of Investigation and other agencies. On Tuesday, CCPD served a search warrant for a record of everyone who viewed the Facebook livestream of the event in hopes of finding a new lead.

Although it may not have been a typical ceremony, Castle Rock Charter School was still able to celebrate its graduating seniors last Thursday.

Following lingering COVID-19 guidelines, Castle Rock did what many other schools have done of late, and hosted a non-traditional, drive-thru graduation ceremony culminating at the cultural center on Front Street.

Graduates stayed in their cars — most driven by grinning parents — and inched up the parade on Front Street until they arrived at the entrance to the cultural center, where they hopped out, quickly grabbed their hard-earned diploma

Benjamin Stairs graduated from the adult education program, more than 30 years after he attended high school for the first time.

Mask or not? Californians now have a choice

To mask, or not to mask?

After the state dropped most COVID-19 restrictions Tuesday, including the mask mandate for most settings, some Californians and visitors to the state are still confused about the rules.

Chris and Arlayne Easeman from Seattle, Washington stopped at the Crescent City Walmart on their way to San Francisco. Although they are both vaccinated, the couple was preparing to enter the store masked-up when the TriPLICATE interviewed them.

Arlayne said they would keep their masks on unless they were told otherwise. Despite the change, a face mask requirement sign remained above the store entrance.

"For me it's more of a common courtesy. It has nothing to do with my rights, it's common sense and common courtesy," said Arlayne. "If I can do something as minimal as wearing a mask, and it protects me from you and you from me, why not?"

The Easeman's from Seattle, Washington still plan to wear masks indoors for the time being, as COVID-19 restrictions in Seattle still persist.

Local David Froom does not wear a mask in stores, but he is vaccinated. He said he got the shot because he cares for his 83-year old mom.

Thanks to increasing number of people vaccinated across California, Gov. Gavin Newsom lifted most COVID restrictions Tuesday, basically fully-reopening the economy.

The news was welcome across the state, but especially in Del Norte County, which has remained in the higher tier of lockdowns for months. On the same day the restrictions were lifted, Del Norte County moved into what was previously the orange, or moderate, tier.

For the last week, Del Norte County had 4.7 new cases per 100,000 residents and a 1.7 percent positivity rate. When the lockdowns were lifted,

OBITUARIES

Fredrick Kenneth Otremba

Fredrick Kenneth Otremba peacefully separated from his earthly body on June 2, 2021 after a long battle with lung cancer and congestive heart failure. Born July 13, 1960 in Crescent City, CA, he offered to all who came to know and love him an exceptionally unique and big-hearted perspective on life. To family and friends he was the other most interesting man in the world.

Born an authentic free spirit (which got him into a bit of trouble from time to time) and a preference for tie-dye attire, Fred was a passionate lifelong learner and contemplator of the universe. From Batman to Gandhi, from astronomy to geology, from Buddhism to the life cycle of salamanders, from the history of oppression to the magic of rock and roll, from meditation rituals to pondering the greater mysteries of galaxies far, far away—he was fascinated by how all things are connected. True to his nonconformist ways, Fred lived simply and believed each of us arrived on this planet with an obligation to protect our environment. He truly loved having the ocean a short walk away and considered a swim in the Smith River just a breath away from heaven. He also believed in our collectively responsibility to care for each other no matter how privileged or disadvantaged. Fred rarely locked his door, always kept the porch light on (which fittingly went out the night he passed) and once, he even had a spare change bowl where anyone could take what they needed to buy a meal with the promise to return coins when they were able. Often described as a mentor or spiritual guide, Fred was light on judgment and heavy on kindness, acceptance and understanding.

Eternally open-minded and adventurous, Fred cultivated many interests and talents including astrophysics, wood-carving, wire art, coin and rock collecting, painting, drawing, and yes, was well aware of the therapeutic benefits of marijuana. Throughout handwritten journals packed with Fred insights are illustrations of “Sticman,” a cartoon character he created as a purveyor of wit and sarcasm. “If you think the world is treating you badly,” observed Sticman, “then you’re in the wrong part of it.”

During his lifetime, Fred had a variety of occupations including crewing on commercial fishing boats, working in the woods as a logger, and helping to keep the peace in local bars as the gentle giant bouncer. In recent years, he particularly enjoyed producing laser light shows for local events.

But above all, Fred was a gifted singer and musician. Virtually any musical instrument he could hold in his hands he could play—the sitar, banjo, zither, ukulele, bass fiddle, and of course, the beloved guitar he called his “fire-breathing dragon.”

Fred especially loved concerts, music festivals and jamming with other musicians just to see what was possible in the spontaneity of the moment. He not only played guitar but repaired them and even built two out of a burl coffee table from his childhood home. No one in the family will ever forget Fred showing up at the front door in only shorts and a T-shirt, banjo in hand after the Coast Guard had rescued him from a sinking fishing boat—a fishing boat he refused to leave without his banjo. So it’s no surprise that posted on the ceiling above his bed was this Hans Christian Andersen quote, “Where words fail, music speaks.”

Fred was the son of the late Bethany Barton Otremba and Herbert Kenneth Otremba. He is survived by sisters Jackie Boor of Sacramento and Paula Lang, a Crescent City resident along with brothers, Randy Otremba and Ron Otremba, three generations of nieces and nephews, and a kaleidoscopic array of friends near and far.

Family and friends have begun the process of planning “Fredfest” near the end of summer to celebrate his life at Beach Front Park. Those wishing to support a cause close to Fred’s heart are encouraged to send donations in his memory to the Del Norte County Historical Society, 577 H Street, Crescent City, CA 95531.

Right: For the first time since he was paralyzed last year, Zachary Abblitt returned to Sporthaven Beach. Left: As they return to their home, Kristi Abblitt said they are navigating new challenges, such as living in a home with multiple levels. She said they were able to lift Zac to the second floor, where he has access to his bedroom, a bathroom and their kitchen, but he had not yet gotten up to the living room, one floor higher, and would also need help to exit the house.

Abblitt returns home for first time since accident

Zac is back.

It’s been more than 200 days since Zachary Abblitt dove into shallow water at Sporthaven Beach and shattered two vertebrates in his neck, partially paralyzing him.

Since then, Zac and his mother Kristi have traveled to several hospitals in different states — most recently at Craig Hospital in Englewood, Colorado — undergoing surgeries and doing extensive rehabilitation work. On Monday, though, Zac finally returned to his home in Brookings.

Before sitting down with the Pilot for an interview, Zac revisited the beach where his life changed forever.

“It was so amazing...I was able to kind of cruise across the sand. First time in seven months that I was there...Out of everything to see, that was the one spot I wanted to go back to. I love Colorado, but I really missed the ocean,” said Zac.

Although he was at Craig for more than six months, Zac initially thought his stay would be short. As their stay was extended through community support, Zac was able to regain muscle function in his arms and wrists, as well as memorize a pertinent Bible passage — Psalm 139 — which reads in part,

“I praise you because I am fearfully and wonderfully made; your works are wonderful, I know that full well.”

Zac said the verse has newfound meaning for him.

“I don’t know the purpose or the full-extent for my injury, why God is using it, but I know it’s not a mistake. How my body is right now, is exactly how God intended it to be,” said Zac.

While at Craig, Zac said he also developed lifelong bonds with his therapists and other patients. He said he plans to stay in touch with some of his patient-friends from the hospital through a group chat they dubbed the “Quad Squad.” Zac said the word quad has a double-meaning because they are a friend group of four quadriplegics.

“It was an incredible time, made a lot of friends, lifelong friends for sure,” said Zac. “A couple of guys have very similar injuries to mine, so it was very easy to relate.”

Before leaving, Zac wrote four, one-page letters to his therapists, all without feeling in his fingers.

“Each letter took at least an hour...I spent so much time I actually got this wound on my elbow,” said Zac as he pointed to a small open sore on his elbow.

In the letters, Zac expressed his faith in Jesus, which he credits for his continued recovery.

“[I] just told them how much they blessed me, and really told them [about] #zacsHope and the meaning behind it. My hope is Jesus... I wanted to make certain that I left an impression that that’s what they knew about me,” said Zac.

#zacsHope is a social media hashtag the family made to support Zac’s recovery. It’s also the title of their crowdfunding page on givebutter.com.

As they return to their home, Kristi said they are navigating new challenges, such as living in a home with multiple levels. She said they were able to lift Zac to the second floor, where he has access to his bedroom, a bathroom and their kitchen, but he had not yet gotten up to the living room, one floor higher, and would also need help to exit the house.

Despite layout challenges at his longtime home, Kristi said Zac has remained positive.

“He’s joyful, he cracks jokes, and I think he’s hopeful, too, and willing to be flexible to figure out how to make this home work for us for this time period,” said Kristi.

Kristi said they are in the process of finding a new home with more accessibility for Zac. She said the support from the community has been overwhelming, and she also credits God for the continuation of Zac’s recovery.

“God has sent us on a surprising journey, but he has not abandoned us, and it’s a course we know He’s set, and we’re not afraid of it, but it takes a strength of heart to move through it,” said Abblitt.

Going forward, Zac said he is excited to relearn how to play his bass guitar, but he is mostly eager to attend in-person church services again at Calvary Heritage, where his father is the pastor.

Gus Gus is a happy-go-lucky, outgoing boy. He loves to ride in cars and go on walks. While he has lived with other dogs, he has not met other dogs politely here at the shelter, so probably no other dogs for now (we are working on it). Gus Gus is very loving and is hoping to find a family where he can shine.

Henry the Fish is one of dozens of pieces of art created by Washed Ashore, an educational nonprofit in Bandon. Washed Ashore uses trash that washes up on local beaches to make artwork. Below, a tufted puffin that can be seen at Coquille Point also is made fully of trash collected in the ocean.

Turning trash into treasure to teach a lesson

By DAVID RUPKALVIS
The Triplicate

A Bandon art gallery with a mission far greater than just art reopened its door this week after being closed for 15 months due to COVID-19. Washed Ashore opened its gallery at 325 2nd Street SE in downtown Bandon after using the time off to make some improvements to the gallery.

“We’re super stoked, super excited for it,” gallery Manager Cameron McGrew said last week. “We’re getting a few new additions. We’re getting the walls painted, and the carpets have already been cleaned. It’s exciting to have a fresh start.

Washed Ashore opened in 2010 when Angela Haseltine Pozzi came up with an idea to make art out of trash that washes up on beaches in the area. Pozzi, who also serves as artistic director, joined with artist Steve Wright to create masterpieces that are made almost fully out of trash.

Washed Ashore collects trash that has been removed from breaches through volunteer cleanup efforts as well as trash collected by park rangers. The items are then cleaned and used to make massive sculptures.

“We will definitely pick up whatever they find and turn it into some awesome sea creatures,” McGrew said.

And by doing so, Washed Ashore hopes to spread a bigger message about keeping trash out of the ocean.

“We’re an education-based nonprofit,” McGrew said. “Our goal is to educate the public. We’ve actually done viewings in Canada. We’ve been all over the United States. Right now, we’re in Norfolk, Virginia, Green Bay, Wisconsin and Turtle Bay in Redding, California.”

Washed Ashore also has pieces in the Smithsonian, Florida Aquarium and different aquariums and zoos across Oregon.

But the home base is and has always been in Bandon. It is there where Pozzi and Wright come up with their ideas and it is there where volunteers help put together the sculptures piece by piece.

The end result is larger than life sculptures, all showcasing sea creatures and all made from trash.

“We’re cleaning the beaches, we’re educating the public and trying to educate the community,” McGrew said.

While most of the sculptures or made of plastic, some include Styrofoam, nets from fishing boats and more. The biggest problem, though, remains plastic. The issue is plastic never fully degrades, so it can remain in the ocean for years and years. And during that time, it can cause havoc on animals that live and rely on the sea. Washed Ashore is trying to spread the message that most plastic use is not necessary. At the gallery, they offer water in biodegradable milk cartons. “Plastic is necessary to an extent,” McGrew said. “But the single-use plastic is what we’re trying to avoid, things like single-use soda bottles, plastic wrapping around food that you’ll just take off and throw away.”

To make the point, McGrew likes showing a sculpture in the museum. Made largely of plastic water bottles, the majority of the bottles came from the Olympic games in Beijing, China. They washed ashore near Bandon several years later.

“Everything you buy is a vote,” McGrew said. “So, if you choose to buy boxed water, for example, you’re voting with your wallet every time you make a purchase. If we were to all just stop buying plastic soda bottles, they would get the message.”

Instead, McGrew said, buy aluminum, glass and paper products that can be easily recycled.

When visitors come to Washed Ashore, McGrew or other docents will start conversations with visitors to showcase the importance of voting with their wallets.

And, once again, Washed Ashore is opening and spreading that message.

As a nonprofit, the gallery relies on donations, volunteers and grants. It is also now making decent money loaning its finished products to museums and other places around the country.

Inside the gallery is still the best place to get a look at the work. There are over 85 sculptures in the gallery, with the largest probably a parrot fish that is 9-1/2 feet tall, 14 feet long and six feet wide.

The Washed Ashore Gallery will be open from noon to 5 p.m. Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday and 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Friday and Saturday.

What do we owe wildland firefighters?

By JONATHON GOLDEN

“It’s like having gasoline out there,” said Brian Steinhart, forest fire zone manager for Prescott and Coconino national forests in Arizona, in a recent AP story about the increasingly fire-prone West.

Now something else is happening — and at the worst possible time.

Federal firefighters are leaving the workforce and taking their training and experience with them. The inability of federal agencies to offer competitive pay and benefits is creating hundreds of wildland firefighting vacancies.

Vacancies, of course, limit how much federal firefighters can do. If Western communities want to be protected, they need to ensure that their firefighters receive better pay and benefits.

In my 11 years of work as a wildland firefighter, I’ve managed aircraft, trained people and run fires myself, but I also did outreach and recruitment for the Forest Service and Bureau of Land Management. I know how hard it is for hiring managers to make 2,000 hours of grueling work, crammed into six exhausting months, sound appealing when the pay is $13.45/hour. The pay doesn’t come close to matching the true demands or everyday dangers of the job.

Federal wildland firefighters, by necessity, are transient workers. During the fire season — now nearly year-round — they must be available to travel anywhere in the United States at any time. And to advance in their career, they have to move to other federal duty stations to gain more qualifications.

Finding affordable housing has always been a problem for career firefighters on a federal salary. To make matters worse, federal agencies revoked the “Transfer of Station” stipend for career employees, which helped offset the cost of moving. Just recently, a national forest supervisor also revoked a “boot stipend.” It might sound minor, but it isn’t: When you’re in the firefighting business, boots tough enough to save your life can easily cost you $500.

Some states aren’t relying on the government to act quickly. “We aren’t just waiting for the next crisis to hit,” said California Gov. Gavin Newsom, in establishing an $80.74 million Emergency Fund that delivers an additional 1,256 seasonal firefighters to boost CAL-FIRE’s ranks. This Emergency Fund is in addition to the governor’s $1 billion budget request for California’s Wildfire and Forest Resilience Action Plan.

In Washington, state legislators unanimously passed a $125 million package that will enable the state’s Natural Resources Department to hire 100 more firefighters. The legislation furthers the state’s efforts to restore forest health and creates a $25 million fund to ensure community preparedness around the state.

Utah’s House Bill 65, recently signed into law, appropriates money to help Utah’s communities offset the cost of wildfire suppression. Most importantly, it commissions a study to evaluate the current pay plan for firefighters within Utah’s Natural Resources Department.

The bill’s sponsor, Rep. Casey Snider, was amazed to learn that frontline wildland firefighters make more money at McDonald’s: “These positions are critical,” he said. “They are the first ones on fires.” This year, Utah has already had five times the number of wildfires it normally experiences in a year.

And firefighters are organizing and speaking up. The Grassroots Wildland Firefighters is working to halt the exodus of firefighters from federal agencies by advocating for pay parity with state and local fire protection agencies. The group also supports initiatives to assist the physical and mental health of firefighters and their families. The statistics they highlight are shocking: Wildland firefighters have a suicide rate 30 times higher than the average. They also experience high incidences of cardiovascular disease and lung cancer.

There is talk on the federal level of creating a permanent, year-round firefighting workforce. I think this is a necessary step, but it won’t fix the workforce capacity issue unless increased pay and benefits are used to encourage the recruitment and retention of federal firefighters.

We all know that today’s wildfires are longer, more damaging and more frequent than ever before. We also know that men and women are putting their lives on the line for less than they’d earn at a McDonald’s.

Our firefighters do all this to protect our lives, our forests and our communities. We owe them at least a living wage and a chance for a healthy life. I hope more states and legislators will start paying attention. This is a debt that needs to be paid.

Jonathon Golden lives in Moab, Utah, and is a contributor to Writers on the Range, writersontherange.org, a nonprofit dedicated to spurring lively conversation about the West. He left firefighting in 2019 to found a consulting company that focuses on conservation and national security.

A Word, Please: nominalizations

By JUNE CASAGRANDE

Before 2006, I never gave much thought to nominalizations — noun forms like “beauty” and “the scheduling” that at heart are really adjectives like “beautiful” or verbs like “to schedule.” I was familiar with the concept, but I didn’t understand how much it could improve writing.

That changed when I came across “The Curious Case of the Misplaced Modifier” by Bonnie Trenga — a brilliant little book that portrays common writing mistakes as mysteries to be investigated detective-style. Chapter 2, “The Illuminating Investigation Into the Nasty Nominalization,” changed me.

The chapter begins with a short detective story packed with badly written sentences: “Astonishment by Miss Crufflepuff had occurred upon the realization that a thief had absconded with her TV and toaster. However, the perpetrator’s leaving of the heirloom silverware caused much head scratching.

If you came across writing this bad in the wild you might not notice how bad it is. Instead, you’d lose focus, lose interest and put the book down. Even if you did pause to appreciate how exquisitely bad this writing is, you probably couldn’t put your finger on why.

As Trenga illustrates so clearly, nominalizations are the problem. “Astonishment” is a noun form of the adjective “astonished.” “Realization” is the noun form of the verb “realize.” “The leaving of the heirloom silverware” makes a noun out of “leaving.” And the crowning glory, “caused much head scratching” uses a noun “scratching” instead of the verb “scratch.”

Nominalizations are perfectly grammatical. Lots of adjectives and verbs have noun forms. I run: verb. I wear running shoes: adjective. Running is good exercise: noun.

But unlike verbs and adjectives, a nominalization can sometimes make a sentence terrible. Or should I say, they can imbue a sentence with terribleness.

There are several reasons.

First, nouns trying to do the work of verbs or adjectives are static and abstract — lifeless objects devoid of action or texture. They’re poor substitutes for dynamic verbs and descriptive adjectives. The idea of “walking” is less relatable than “Joe walked,” with an actual person doing an actual thing.

Second, sentences with nominalizations often leave out subjects of action. As Trenga notes, in “The screeching unnerved the rookie,” you don’t know who’s screeching.

Third, nominalizations often require awkward writing just to make sense. In “Astonishment by Miss Crufflepuff had occurred upon the realization,” you need a word like “by” or “of” just to know who is astonished. Plus, you end up with the action-deprived verb “had occurred” and the always-awkward “upon.” The preposition “of” is the nominalization’s biggest accomplice. The screeching of the owl. The writing of the will. The walking of the dog.

Trenga uses simple examples to show how to rewrite sentences to get rid of nominalizations.

“The last step was the collection of the victim’s dust bunnies” can be recast as “The forensics team collected the victim’s dust bunnies.”

“Happiness was evident after the clown was arrested” can be rewritten as “The detective was happy after she arrested the clown.”

Since I read Trenga’s book, I see nominalizations everywhere. And I know how to fix them. On the day I wrote this column, I edited an article with a sentence like “The addition of the new headquarters paved the way for the creation of jobs.” Armed with an understanding of nominalizations, I could see multiple alternatives including, “ABC’s new headquarters opened in 2014, adding 200 jobs in the community.”

Another example from my editing work: “We elevate the status of our communities through the provision of high-quality, affordable healthcare services.” When I was done, it said, “We elevate our communities by providing high-quality, affordable healthcare services.”

Of course, nominalizations exist for a reason. “The running of the bulls” is a good example of a deliberate nominalization that requires no improvement. And the word “nominalization” is itself a nominalization.

When you spot a nominalization, try rewriting the sentence. In some cases, you’ll see the sentence is best left as is. But more often than not, the writing will be better when you’re done.

Daniel Dawson

his parents worked as teachers and developmental disability professionals and his brother has taught high school English and journalism for more than two decades. His wife Jennifer taught dance professionally for 20 years before retiring and now works in the community and in their gardens.

While on active duty with the Navy, Daniel and his family have lived in Sasebo, Japan and Okinawa, in addition to work-related visits to Australia, Korea and the Philippines and most recently a month-long trek in northern Spain walking the Camino de Santiago. Now Daniel can be found walking along Pebble Beach Drive and Beach Front Park on most mornings. He spends quality time at home with his wife, their three cats and good books.

DEAR ABBY

By Abigail Van Buren

NEIGHBOR INTRUDES ON BACKYARD OASIS

DEAR ABBY: I am a 40-something single mother of two teens. A 24-year-old neighbor with a young daughter moved in next door a couple years ago after her divorce. She recently joined the workforce, and being a single working mother for the last year and a half has been a difficult adjustment for her. When she sees me outside, she comes over to vent. She seems incapable of just giving a friendly wave and going about her day.

I like to garden in peace. She has actually come into my yard, sat on my lawn and complained while I continued weeding. She prefaces it by telling me she doesn’t want advice; she just wants to vent. Abby, I have lived her life -- with a lot less support -- and at this point, I value my alone time. I don’t want to listen to her woes.

I find myself sneaking around my yard trying to avoid her. Today, I saw her setting up a trampoline in her backyard. It’s close to my yard and right outside my dining room window. How do I communicate to her that I don’t want a visitor when I’m working in my yard? I know her feelings will be hurt. I’ve already tried to set boundaries by not initiating conversation and not inviting her over. Help! -- PRIVATE IN THE MIDWEST

DEAR PRIVATE: Tell your neighbor she needs to find another person to vent to because your gardening activities are the way you cope with your own problems, and you prefer to do that without company. Then suggest she find a comparable activity for herself that may serve the same purpose. She may not like hearing it, but you will be free.

DEAR ABBY: My husband has withdrawn himself from my family. I sense my niece resents it. She’s 53 and has a teenage son. I believe she thinks we don’t see each other because we don’t love them. I can’t explain what’s going on with my husband to her. I want to explain to my family and maybe make excuses for his behavior, but honestly, I don’t think it would change much.

I realize COVID-19 has kept families apart, and this may not be a good time to try to become closer. I have expressed my feelings to my husband, but it never turns out well. He lost his mom two years ago, and his depression has gotten worse. He wants nothing to do with my family. They don’t deserve it, but things are good between the two of us apart from this issue. Must I choose sides? What can I do? -- CHOOSING SIDES IN CANADA

DEAR CHOOSING: Unless there is something important that you omitted from your letter, your husband’s behavior may be connected to the loss of his mother. Do not “choose sides,” but also do not allow him to separate you from your family. Stay in touch as much as you can, and once the quarantines are finished, visit with them. Explain your husband’s absence by letting your relatives know WHY your husband is acting this way and that he needs compassion and understanding, not judgment.

Dear Abby is written by Abigail Van Buren, also known as Jeanne Phillips, and was founded by her mother, Pauline Phillips. Contact Dear Abby at www.DearAbby.com or P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, CA 90069.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the County of Del Norte will conduct a Public Hearing at 3:00 p.m., or soon thereafter, on Thursday, June24, 2021 via Zoom at <https://dnco.zoom.us/j/-96277042479?pwd=-c2h0VFIMUXNkQXR4V0ZlZL2-xwYUFVdz09> in order to discuss submittal of an application for funding under the 2021 State Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) Program and to solicit public input on competitive activities to be included in the application.

This public hearing is in response to the release of the Notice of Funding Availability (NOFA) for CDBG-CV2 and 3 funds for COVID-19 related activities that benefit low-and moderate-income residents. On March 27, 2020, Congress passed the Coronavirus Aid, Relief, and Economic Security (CARES) Act in response to the impacts of the COVID-19 pandemic. The State Department of Housing and Community Development (HCD) have published a Notice of Funding Availability (NOFA) for Community Development Block Grant Coronavirus Aid, Relief, and Economic Security (CDBG-CV2 and CV3) funds. The State will receive $113,263,490 in CDBG-CV2 funds and $ 18,031,478 in CDBG-CV3 funds. HCD has set aside approximately $50 million of its CDBG-CV2 funds to support Homekey projects to California units of local government for projects applied for under the Homekey NOFA that are CDBG-CV2 eligible. The County of Del Norte is eligible to receive funds as a Homekey Awardee through the Homekey Set-aside Application Invitation received by HCD.

Eligible activities paid for with State CDBG funds must meet one of the three National Objectives listed in CDBG Federal Statutes as follows: benefit to low-income households or persons (also called Low/Mod Benefit), slum and blight (addressing physical problems in specific neighborhoods) or meeting urgent community development need (a need resulting from a state or federal declared disaster or posing unforeseen risks to health and safety). In addition, eligible activities must be used directly to prevent, prepare for or respond to COVID-19 and meet CDBG requirements as provided and directed by HCD in the published NOFA and outlined in their plan as follows:
Public services to respond to COVID-19 impacts
Public facility improvements to increase capacity for healthcare facilities and improve public facility safety
Housing facilities for persons experiencing homelessness, including acquisition and rehabilitation
Economic development to support needs of local businesses to retain and bring back jobs impacted by COVID-19

Free 4th of July entertainment lineup for Beachfront Park

A slate of exciting entertainment is planned for the July 4th festivities at Beachfront Park. The entertainment is brought to you in-part by Lucky 7 Casino, Affordable Tow, Bicoastal Media and Supervisor Valerie Starkey. Live entertainment will start two hours later than most years due to the 4th of July being on a Sunday. The 4th of July parade will start and end two hours later than normal years which will push all other 4th of July activities in Beachfront Park two hours later than most years (excluding the big fireworks show which will still start at approximately 9:30 p.m. or after sunset).

The schedule for entertainment includes:
Steve Berg – 2 to 4 p.m.
For over 45 years Steve Berg has been described as a true ‘crowd pleaser’ entertainer with his unique brand of finger style acoustic guitar singer/songwriter genre from the ’60s and ’70s combined with a little folk and country thrown in. Fan favorites are Ricky Nelson’s “Traveling Man,” Elton John’s “Your Song” and Nitty Gritty Dirt Band’s “Mister Bojangles.” Berg’s fans tell him “we recognize your songs and love to sing along”.

The Lost Coast Countymen – 4 to 6 p.m.
During the last four years, the north coast and Southern Oregon music buffs have delighted in the sounds that come from The Lost Coast Countymen who “play everything from Jones to Stones.” The Lost Coast Countymen are full of great talent, in fact, Vern Monnett, one of the band members, played in his younger years and before relocating to the north coast, with Randy Meisner of the Eagles, as well as Freddy Fender and the Texas Tornados.

Some of their fan favorites are “Into the Mystic” by Van Morrison, a popular medley that includes “Unchain my Heart” by Ray Charles and “The letter” by Joe Crocker, and “Pancho and Lefty” by Willie Nelson.
Mighty Steelheads 6 – 8 p.m.

The Mighty Steelheads bring popular classic rock sounds to the stage. They started off as a musical trio six years ago and last year expanded their stage presence to five by adding two more talented musicians to the group. They bring a wonderful blend of Americana and Grateful Dead while sticking to their roots of county and blues, fan favorites include “Althea” by the Grateful Dead, “Tangled up in Blue” by Bob Dylan, and “If the Shoe fits, Wear It” by Leon Russell.

in the past four years. Most of the calls are for emergency medical service, which the fire department is responsible for providing.
Although the county is conducting a recount of the vote due to the narrow margin, it appears the fire department will have to battle rising call volumes with less resources at their disposal.

Crescent City Fire Protection District could not immediately be reached for comment on this story.

Masks

In May, Walmart and Costco dropped mask requirements for vaccinated workers and customers in places without mask mandates, but the rules in California stores remained unchanged until now.
Additionally, the company does not require proof of vaccination for customers or its workers, relying on the honor system if employees want to go maskless while they work, according to news reports.
Local David Froom was exiting the store maskless. He said he got vaccinated because he takes care of his 83-year-old mother, which includes doing her grocery shopping.
Froom said he stays away from businesses that require him to wear a mask because they cause him breathing issues. He had not heard about the state lifting mask mandates and other COVID-19 guidelines, but he said he was opposed to some of the restrictions in the first place, which he thinks hurt the economy.

“I’ve never had anyone around me, close, that’s had [Covid-19,]” said Froom.
Meanwhile, Dodger Stadium opened up to a full capacity crowd for the first time since the beginning of the pandemic on Tuesday, allowing up to 60,000 fans in for the game against the Phillies, according to news reports. Fully-vaccinated fans were allowed to sit in “vaccination sections” of the stadium without masks, after patrons showed proof of vaccination, however, masks were required for other fans, as well as employees.

29 counties were in the minimal tier, 28 in the moderate and only one in high.
On Tuesday, Newsom terminated the statewide stay-at-home order and removed the tier systems. The new rules eliminate the mandates on physical distancing and capacity limits on businesses.
“Today, we celebrate the incredible strength and resilience of Californians – from our heroic health care workers to essential workers across the board to everyday Californians from all walks of life – who have supported each other through hardship and heartache over the past year, making sacrifices to save countless lives and enable us to turn the page on this pandemic,” said Newsom during a press conference. “As we look ahead to better days, we will continue to look out for one another, redoubling our support to those hit hardest by the pandemic and making unprecedented investments to address California’s most persistent challenges, so that the entire state comes roaring back together.”

California also updated statewide masking mandates to follow the recent CDC guidelines. The new rules say anyone who is fully vaccinated does not need to wear a mask indoors or out. The only exception is for public transit, hospitals, long-term care facilities, homeless shelters and indoors at K-12 schools and childcare facilities. Masks are still required for everyone at those locations.

California also lifted all travel advisories, with no mandate to be tested or to be quarantined after travel.
With the new rules in place, large crowds were expected at events throughout the state. Some estimates suggested 60,000 fans could be at a Los Angeles Dodgers game Tuesday. Under state rules, people who attend indoor events with more than 5,000 people must show proof of vaccination to enter. For outdoor events with more than 10,000 people, it is recommended that attendees be required to show proof of vaccination.

Under the state guidelines, unvaccinated people are still required to wear masks, especially in crowded, indoor environments. Private businesses can also require masks.
The key to safely reopening and controlling any future spread of the virus remains getting people vaccinated. In Del Norte County, vaccines remain slow compared to the rest of California. As of Tuesday, 35.68 of county residents had received at least one dose of the vaccine with 30.62 percent fully vaccinated.
Vaccine clinics continue to be held at the county fairgrounds in Crescent City, and vaccines are also available at most pharmacies in the county.

and a quick photo, and were back in their cars faster than if they had ordered carry-out.
Perhaps an atypical ceremony was fitting for a school as unique as Castle Rock.
Among the graduates was Benjamin Stairs, a student in his 50s who completed some high-school courses before pursuing adult education at Castle Rock, but he had to start from scratch nonetheless, as the schools he attended more than 30 years ago did not have records dating back that far.
Prior to the pandemic, Stairs had a worker help him complete his schoolwork. However, for the past 15 months, he has been completing school work mostly on his own due to COVID-19 restrictions, said Castle Rock teacher Christine Jones.
Jones was Stairs’ primary instructor during his time at Castle Rock. She said he told her about his rough upbringing, including being hit by a car and not being expected to live.
“He’s gone through a lot in his life,” said Jones.
Jones said Stairs was “really excited” about graduating and told her he was “doing it for his dad.” Stairs plans to enroll in college courses after taking a year off.
Stairs was able to attend Castle Rock through the Workforce Innovation and Opportunity Act. WIOA Title II is a federal initiative designed to promote adult education and literacy.
Castle Rock has hosted many adult education students in the past, and Jones said all five of her adult-ed students graduated this year.
No matter what their pomp or circumstance might be, congratulations to the class of 2021.

California State Parks Lifeguards will hold two camps for Crescent City youth. The Junior Lifeguard camps will teach water safety, physical fitness, first aid, CPR and more.

Crescent City Junior Lifeguard camps still have openings, scholarships

Del Norte County young people have a chance to learn how to be safe on the water while having a fun summer experience again with the help of local lifeguards. This August there will be two, week-long Junior Lifeguard camps held on Crescent Beach. California State Parks Lifeguards run the programs for youth aged 8 to 17. The camps teach water safety, physical fitness, first aid, CPR and ocean-oriented sports and activities. Thanks to a local donor to Redwood Parks Conservancy, financial assistance is available for families who need it. Funding for scholarships is limited. A typical day at North Coast Junior Guards starts with stretches and an assessment of the current ocean conditions, which prepares junior guards for the day's events. These events can include run-swim-runs, buoy swims, boogie boarding, body surfing, surfing, lectures on topics such as lifeguard skills (rescues and first aid), and shoreline games and activities. These events are aimed to educate each Junior Guard on how to maneuver the ever-changing ocean conditions, the importance of a daily workout, and maximizing the enjoyment of living on the coast side. The Junior Lifeguard program has been altered to meet COVID-safety guidelines. Group sizes will be no greater than 10 with one or two lifeguards running each group and a total of five groups per session. Besides the two one-week sessions based out of Crescent City, there will be six one-week sessions based out of Trinidad State Beach. All sessions will be from 11 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. Monday-Friday. Parents who register will be instructed on other program differences once they have completed registration. There will be staggered pick up and drop off times and mandated daily health screenings. Del Norte Sessions: August 2nd-6th, August 16-20 Crescent Beach (Enderts Beach Road access) To register and learn more about the program, visit https://www.parks.ca.gov/?page\_id=26889 For more information, call North Coast Lifeguards (707)-677-3132 or contact northcoastlifeguards@gmail.com

Petty Rocks Tribute Band

Petty Rocks tribute band to wow crowd at July 3rd deck party!

For the first time in the history of the Crescent City Deck Party, the Crescent City/Del Norte Chamber of Commerce is bringing in a headliner entertainment act to wow the crowd. This first-class free entertainment is brought to you in-part by the Deck Party Sponsors of: Lucky 7 Casino, Re/Max Coastal Redwoods Real Estate, Red Sky Roofing and Redwood Medical Offices.

The concert is slated to run from 5 to 8 p.m. outside the Cultural Center on Front Street. Petty Rocks is a Northern California based tribute to the music of the one-of-a-kind rock and roll icon Tom Petty. Comprised of five top-notch, seasoned musicians, Tom Petty's iconic catalog, both top hits and "deep cuts" are performed in expert, high energy fashion. Petty Rocks prides itself on detailed, faithful versions of Tom Petty's amazing brand of American rock and roll. You will hear all of Petty's biggest hits, such as Breakdown, I Won't Back Down, Free Falling and more. You'll also hear lesser known gems such as Room at The Top, Love is a Long Road, You Get Me High, in addition to hits from The Traveling Wilburys. Whether you are a Tom Petty fanatic or a casual fan, Petty Rocks will keep you entertained and dancing to the great tunes. In between dancing you can visit with others, purchase Cow Chip Bingo Deeds, partake of great adult refreshments and delicious treats from Marlo's Restaurant and participate in the great annual raffle where you can win thousands of dollars of merchandise donated by generous local businesses. Don't miss the fun that kicks off the 4th of July festivities in the largest event on the North Coast.

Nieme memorial to be at Lucky 7 Casino

The Lucky 7 Casino will be the site of a memorial for Dayle Nieme, longtime founder and promoter of the Lucky 7 MDA classic car show, who died February 25. He put on the car show for 22 years at the Lucky 7, so it's appropriate that his memorial will be there in the front parking lot where most of his car shows were located. He put on the car show from a scooter and later a wheelchair as he was a victim of Muscular Dystrophy. His daughter Heather also is a victim and was beside him at most of the car shows. All of the proceeds from the shows went to the Muscular Dystrophy Association. The car that he loved for over 25 years will also be there, a 1970 Plymouth Roadrunner. The car show will go on without him this year as the Lucky 7 Casino still would like to continue honoring him by sponsoring and supporting the MDA. There will be a show and shine for all of his classic cars friends, so everyone is invited to come and bring their cars. It will be held June 26 from 10 a.m. until 2 p.m.
