Grad among 25 athletes to receive State All Academic Honors

A record number of College of the Redwoods athletes have been named State All Academic Honorees for the 2019-20 academic year. Freshman volleyball athlete Paula Mello, a Del Norte High School graduate, was the only local athlete to make the list with a 3.861 grade point average and 29 units completed. Of the 25 students on the list, two accomplished this while participating in two sports — Grace Rosebrook (soccer and softball) and Juliana Ortega-Miranda (soccer and basketball). The previous high from CR was 17, which was accomplished in 2018-19. Prior to that, it was 16 in 2010-11. “This a great accomplishment and testament to the commitment of our student athletes, not only to dedicate a tremendous amount of time and effort to compete in their sport, but also towards their educational goals and to achieve these high standards of academic success” said CR Athletics Director Bob Brown. “I am also very proud of our coaching staff for their individual support to our student athletes’ academic success, as every sport at CR is represented on this most prestigious list.” The criteria for this honor is minimum 24 total units passed within the given academic year, season of competition competed within that given academic year and a cumulative GPA of all academic progress of at least 3.5. “We are extremely proud of the fact that the level of academic honors of our student athletes continues to increase,” said CR President Keith Flamer. “This level of academic achievement is nothing short of remarkable and should be celebrated. I know that our faculty, administrators and coaches are committed to support student athletes as they work towards earning a degree.”

Two students test positive for COVID-19

Campuses to remain open

BY DAVID HAYES The TriPLICATE Two Del Norte Unified School District students have tested positive for COVID-19 according to district and public health officials. In a letter to the public Thursday, Oct. 8, Superintendent Jeff Harris and county Public Health Officer Warren Rehwaltd, confirm the two students — one at Crescent Elk

Middle School and the other from Smith River School — did not contract the coronavirus at the school. The two students were both in the Monday/Wednesday cohorts. “In both cases, we had been previously notified of close contacts, and the two students were quarantined at that time to avoid any further exposure to other students or staff,” the letter read. At this time, no school closures are recommended. According to Harris and Rehwaltd’s letter, individual school closure is recommended based on the number of cases, the percentage of the teacher/students/staff that are positive for COVID-19 and in consultation with county Public Health department. “Individual school closure may be appropriate when there are multiple cases in multiple cohorts at a school or when at least 5 percent of the total number of teachers/student/staff are cases within a 14-day period, depending on the size and physical layout of the school,” they wrote. With the confirmed positive cases, the DNUSD is taking the following steps immediately: — Del Norte County’s Public Health Office, with cooperation of DNSUD, will begin contact tracing. — All affected students and staff, in the two cohorts only, will be placed on quarantine for 14 calendar days. Schools will notify those families regarding how to access school by distance learning. — DNUSD will work with the schools to clean and disinfect the classrooms, per California Department of Public Health and CDC guidelines, and in accordance with the District Epidemic/Pandemic Safety Plan. — Based on the results of public health’s contact tracing, any other students or staff who were in close contact with the positive cases may be quarantined. — COVID-19 testing will most likely be recommended for all quarantined students and staff, and they should contact their local healthcare provider or follow directions from Public Health when contacted. “Public Health and the District have been and will continue to work closely together to help our schools and community remain healthy and safe,” the letter states. “Please remember that this is why our schools are implementing cohorts and why the wearing of face coverings, physical distancing, and hand washing or sanitizing are so important.” Rehwaltd reiterated and Harris emphasized, DNUSD will not be able to stop the virus nor ensure that no one contracts it, “but can minimize exposure, slow the spread and continue to take a slow, methodical and thoughtful approach to students returning to school.”

Tribe provides digital learning devices

The Yurok Tribe will soon provide fully equipped tablets and all-in-one printers to Yurok children living on and off of the reservation. “The Yurok Tribal Council wants to make sure our students have the tools they need to succeed in school, whether they are in the classroom or distance learning,” said Joseph L. James, the Chairman of the Yurok Tribe. “With this gift, we are sending a message to let our youth know how much we care about them and want to see them prosper. These age-appropriate devices will help students of all ages excel in their education and development.” Every Yurok student between the age of 2 and 17 will receive an iPad or a tablet, a durable case, a keyboard and earbuds. All Yurok households with a child in this age range will also receive one printer. Ipads will be provided to students who are between 4 and 17 years old. Children ages 2-3 years old will get age-appropriate tablets filled with games that encourage the learning of numbers and letters as well as the development of critical-thinking skills. The Tribe is going to put on drive-through events in Humboldt and Del Norte Counties to quickly and safely distribute the learning tools. The devices will be shipped directly to tribal youth who live outside of these counties. Yurok parents are reminded to update their home addresses with the Enrollment Department, which can be reached by calling (707) 482-1350. The Tribe has been working on acquiring the digital devices for approximately one month, but global supply chain issues, factory shutdowns and a massive spike in demand have made it difficult to purchase the large quantity devices needed. For this reason, the printers will be distributed at a later date. The funding for the tablets and printers came from the Coronavirus Aid, Relief, and Economic Security (CARES) Act.

stepped up and made it great.”

Bartholomew said, no exaggeration, 20 to 25 people genuinely said thank you so much for doing the car show.

“They said they’ve been waiting all year to get out,” he said. “One gentleman said he and his wife retired five years ago and all they do is travel around the region to car shows. Sea Cruise was only his third show this year.”

Bill Browning, while admiring a 1932 Plymouth Sedan, said he drove his 1956 AMC Hudson Hornet from Arcadia.

“I poked my head out my house and thought maybe they’d cancel it,” Browning said. “But then I thought, what the hell, I’m here, I’ve paid for the motel and the gas, might as well go. I’m glad I did.”

Mark Jaime, who has been bringing his 1960 Biscayne Chevrolet to Sea Cruise of 10 years, was a little disappointed the trailer queens didn’t want to risk their cars in the weather.

“It’s a lot of fun. Not too many of the the high-dollar cars came out here in mud and with a chance of rain,” Jaime said. “But I’m glad they let us have it this year. It was a little iffy there for a while with COVID. But it’s good for the community.”

Cindy Vosburg, executive director of event co-sponsor Crescent City and Del Norte Chamber of Commerce, said the community members who showed up were able to vote in more than 100 categories to place their favorite car. Here’s a look at the winners from the top five most popular categories:

— Chamber’s Choice/ Trophy Sponsor State Farm Lisa McKeown:

1947 Ford Ambulance, owned by Jim and Judy Davis, of Ravendale, Calif.

— Northern Knights Choice/ Trophy Sponsor Curly Redwoods Lodge: 1960 Chevy Impala, owned by Daniel Marsh, of Lapine, Oregon

— Longest Distance/ Trophy Sponsor Curly Redwoods Lodge:

1985 Corvette Coupe, owned by Barry Westphal, from Marysville, Wash., traveled 557 miles

— Best Paint/Trophy Sponsor Champion Awards:

1955 Chevy 210 Sedan, owned by Lisa Lavoie., of Anderson, Calif.

— Best of Show/Trophy Sponsor Lucky 7 Casino & Hotel:

1962 Chevy Corvette, owned by Russ Robinson, of Grants Pass, Oregon

Bartholomew said not enough participants showed up to be judged in the new low rider category.

“I told them you bring me 10 entries we’ll have a contest. That pays for trophies,” Bartholomew said. “We didn’t have 10, I think we had five, but we’ll keep it (the low rider category). I don’t think it’s fair disqualifying them this year with everything going on.”

While the receipts are still being counted, Bartholomew said as long as they broke even or better, he’d consider that a win.

“We got the community out of their houses. That in of itself was a win,” he said.

Homeless

Sen. Mike McGuire in trying to create a permanent program through No Place Like Home. However, he reiterated he was disappointed at not being included in the discussion.

“I appreciate the fact that we finally have an opportunity for a real solution,” Inscore said. “As leaders we have got to continue to communicate and work together so we can remove some of the disinformation that ends up coming out as has happened in this case.”

Crescent City Councilor Jason Greenough, who joined Gitlin and others at a protest rally Oct. 8 against the acquisition, said he still disapproved of the plan to purchase Coastal Inn & Suites to turn it into a homeless shelter.

“While I do acknowledge the need for a facility like this, I do not believe it should be a location between two thoroughfares of traffic,” he said. “Not to mention the possible blight that could be produced and the loss of revenue the city would lose to

David Hayes, The TriPLICATE

A counter rally Oct. 8 drew about five supporters of the county’s desire to purchase the Coastal Inn & Suites to convert into permanent homeless housing the tune of tens of thousands of dollars.”

Also among the voices of dissent were local business owners. Thomas Barnes, who owns property management company TAB &

Associates Inc., argued Gray was not the face of the typical homeless problem facing the city.

“Contrary to previous comments, the majority of homeless are either drug addicted, alcohol addicted or mentally ill,” Barnes said. “The public, I feel, has almost been ambushed by the Board of Supervisors. There has been no advanced warning, no public notice, no chance to consider or discuss this public issue.”

Mary Wilson, who owns Ocean World, added the community has very few industries to rely on and as tourism is one of them, she fears the loss of revenue and ongoing operating costs.

“I don’t feel the amount of money that will be left over to maintain the facility will be enough to adequately take care of it. Right now the facility is in good condition because it’s not owned by the county and the business owners maintain it constantly. I’m concerned about the ongoing cost associated.”

Supervisor Lori Cowan said she has worked thousands of hours to find solutions to the county’s homeless problem through various programs like No Place Like Home and Mission Possible’s work on homeless shelters, and supports the county’s purchase of Coastal Inn & Suites.

“This is the right solution, this is what we’ve been doing for five-plus years. I have been on the board for four years, we have been helping people transitioning housing at this facility,” she said. “This isn’t a quick fix. This is something we have been working toward for a long time.”

Crescent City since 2004.

“Because of the District’s partnership with the City, operating costs of the department are shared between the two,” the CFPD release said.

“In addition, CFPD and Crescent City recently completed a 10-year Master Plan that outlined the costs required to sustain and improve the department for the next 10 years, including improved staffing, volunteer training programs, equipment and apparatus replacement.”

In 1987, and later in 2006, CFPD established a benefit assessment to help fund services and apparatus replacement. However, a portion of this assessment is set to expire next year, which is why CFPD Board of Directors had voted to move forward with the Prop. 218 benefit assessment this fall.

According to the CFPD, with the expiring 2006 assessment, CFPD’s annual budget will be severely impacted.

“Reports from the Board show that the limited reserve funds will likely be exhausted within a 2-3 year period should the CFPD continue operations at the current level of service,” the release states. “The CFPD Board expects that with the news of the assessment failing, that several tough decisions will have to be made, including reducing the level of service provide by the department.”

“While we are disappointed with the results, we know our volunteer firefighter program is the heart of this community,” said Fire Chief Bill Gillespie stated. “The board would like to thank all the property owners who voted in the election, and the volunteers who worked to help get information out about the assessment.”

Looking ahead, the CFPD Board will be evaluating its options in determining its next steps, including the possibility of another election in 2021 before the 2006 assessment funding expires.

offices. I will listen and share with every community stakeholders, from educators to students and from administrators to parents, to gather valuable input for the Board’s decision-making processes. I seek to improve the quality of every student’s educational experience and to satisfactorily remedy the longstanding student achievement gap, poor school attendance and lower academic performance level inequities ensuring every school-age child receives a world-class education regardless of his or her zip code, cultural heritage, racial background, socio-economic status or student achievement level.

2. School Board Oversight and Accountability: The School Board is the heart of the district and supplies the lifeblood necessary for the district to function properly in every way from progressive leadership, fiscal oversight and accountability to the shared responsibility of equity and equality shared amongst all district schools. Unified, we stand. Therefore, every culturally diverse neighborhood shall have equal and uniform delivery of educational services and programs. Annual performance evaluations will be conducted to hold the Superintendent and the School Board accountable.

3. Curriculum: Every student must be taught adaptation and adjustment skills for future Earth survival. This innovative curricula design teaches students to be active learners, family providers and productive citizens in the ideals of kinship and a sense of belonging capable of contributing to the whole of our culturally diverse society reflected in a positive worldview. The curriculum must incorporate natural resources, land and forest management practices proven successful in traditional indigenous knowledge, bio-diverse environments and regenerative gardening techniques. This includes the growth of food forests to sustain clean air and protecting our clean water supply, incorporating nutritious food production and self-reliance by reducing dependency on consumerism for the health of all humanity and our Mother Earth.

In light of the two recent students testing positive for COVID-19, how safe do you feel it is to send students back to learning in the classroom this far into the coronavirus pandemic?

Magarino: COVID-19 cases in our community is certainly something that needs to be followed closely and adhere to with the safety protocols by our public health department. Our schools have developed and implemented a protocol and plan to keep our students and staff safe. The fact of the matter is, that our teachers are an essential part in the fabric of the community.

With that said, we are seven months into this pandemic, our students need to have an interaction on a personal level with their peers and teachers. Students have myriad learning styles and by reopening our schools we can reach all of our students.

Steinruck: Keep our schools closed to allow serious examination of our resources by implementing necessary steps to prevent an inevitable COVID-19 outbreak. Let’s take the time to re-design and improve our curriculum of what we teach, how we teach and the way we teach here in Del Norte County.

Letter to the editor

Trump refuses to follow the COVID science

Scott Atlas, Trump’s newly minted COVID-19 adviser, is a charlatan posing as knowledgeable in infectious diseases but lacking relevant expertise. Atlas is a radiologist who has been repudiated by 78 of his former colleagues from Stanford Medical School for expressing opinions contrary to medical science consensus.

Herd immunity with a disease such as COVID-19 requires that 70% of the population become immune. With a current population of 330 million, this means 230 million Americans must contract the disease, recover, and become immune. Unfortunately, the jury is still out on whether those recovering from COVID-19 gain long-term immunity.

Case mortality in the U.S. is currently 2.9%. Assuming that this death rate applies to those Americans contracting the disease, over 6 million of us must die.

Additionally, many individuals recovering from the disease experience long-term damage to their lungs, heart and brain. Thus, in addition to the millions of deaths, Trump’s plan will cause many thousands of Americans to suffer long-term health consequences.

At the same time as he’s promoting American deaths, Trump is committed to eliminating the Affordable Care Act and eliminate health coverage for millions of Americans.

We have choices: follow medical science or proposals leading to millions of deaths.

Dear Reader

As your community newspaper, we provide a platform for local civil commentary. We also focus on local news and politics. As part of that focus, we are limiting published letters that lobby for a U.S. presidential candidate in the upcoming election. By confining such letters to two per issue of the newspaper, we can ensure we have room for a variety of other content, both local and - to a lesser extent - national. We are also establishing some new rules for letters to the editor. Any that contain name calling, baseless accusations, false or inaccurate information, or personal attacks will not be published. Letters intended only to inflame others, rather than foster community conversation, will not be published. Thank you for contributing.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR: This newspaper's letters to the editor are limited to a maximum of 350 words and will be edited for grammar, spelling and blatant inaccuracies. Unsubstantiated or irresponsible allegations, or personal attacks on any individual, will not be published. Letters containing details presented as facts rather than opinions must include their sources. All submissions must include the author's full name, local street address and telephone number (only the name and city of residence will be published).

Huffman Announces Education Grants for Native Communities

The U.S. Department of Education is awarding over $1.5 million in federal funding to the Yurok and Tolowa Dee-Ni' tribes in California's Second District. The Demonstration Grants have been awarded to evaluate and expand school services for Native children.

Representative Jared Huffman (D-San Rafael), who represents the Tribes in California's Second District, said adequate funding is critical in ensuring the success of all students, especially Native American students who are often more likely to attend schools in rural and underserved districts.

"This funding will increase collaboration between local tribes and schools, improve enrollment and retention of native students, and expand programs and services such as apprenticeships, classes on native language and culture, online courses, and books and supplies," Huffman said in a press release. "The federal government has a long history of turning its back on Native communities, and I'm glad to see them support critical education programs in our local Native communities."

The grants are anticipated to help 2,000 students from the Yurok Tribe and 1,000 students from the Tolowa Dee-Ni' Nation, and will be distributed as follows:

- $1,038,353 to the Yurok Tribe's Native Educational Choices and Empowerment Project
- $655,193 to the Tolowa Dee-Ni' Nation's California/Oregon Indian Student Services Program.

"The Yurok Tribe is using these much-needed funds to create a customizable support system for tribal students," said Yurok Chairman Joseph L. James. "In an effort to close the achievement gap, we are creating a digital platform that parents and students can use to select a series of standard and cultural relevant services, ranging from college counseling to traditional knowledge development. This specially tailored tool will ensure that our students receive the targeted assistance they need to complete high school and continue their education, whether it's at a university or a vocational academy."

Sutter’s improves care for patients

Since the beginning of the pandemic, Sutter Health’s network of 22 hospitals has reduced the stays for COVID-19 patients from an average of 20 days to just eight days today, thanks to a coordinated response deployed by the integrated healthcare system.

It is one of the ways to show the power of an integrated network in responding to this health emergency. Care teams across the Sutter Health network give patients high-quality care whether at large medical centers in San Francisco and Sacramento or rural hospitals in Crescent City and Lake County.

“Rural hospitals such as ours in Crescent City face unique challenges in terms of resources and the expertise needed from specially trained physicians and nurses,” said Mitch Hanna, CEO of Sutter Coast Hospital. “But, the Sutter integrated network has been there every step of the way with necessary supplies and immediate access to the specialists that helped us care safely and successfully for our community, regardless of the patients’ ability to pay for care.”

Some other key examples of the effectiveness of Sutter Health’s integrated network include:

- The ability to increase care capacity by 200-300% in the midst of the pandemic
- Expanding telehealth services to shift from serving 20 to 7,000 patient visits per day

- Doubling the capacity of remote electronic intensive care units so patients could access 24/7 critical care specialists
- Reallocating crucial resources to get personal protective equipment and ventilators where they were needed most

“We made investments very early on in the beginnings of our network so that we could best support the hospitals, care centers and other health services in our communities,” said William Isenberg, M.D., chief quality and safety officer for Sutter Health. “That planning has helped us in ways we could never have imagined during the pandemic, as well as during some of the wildfires that have touched parts of our Northern California service area.”

Sutter Health serves one of the most demographically and geographically diverse regions in the nation, which means the healthcare system works to identify and respond to the different needs of different communities. An integrated network is able to quickly respond and adjust to the needs in local communities.

An integrated network also supports an easier sharing of best practices, which can help improve clinical outcomes. For instance, care teams across Sutter were able to minimize the need for ventilators in COVID-19-positive patients by using other appropriate therapies. Consistent meetings and briefings between hospital clinical leaders and those within Sutter Health’s Emergency Management System helped provide the timeliest information and developments. Hospital clinical leaders then could quickly turn around and share these findings and approaches with their own hospital incident command centers and teams on the ground.

“Our mission has always focused on enhancing the well-being of all residents in Del Norte County and surrounding communities and we meet that mission when we collaborate with teams across our network,” Hanna added. “These efforts have made an even greater impact during these past seven months – helping improve patient outcomes and slow the spread of the virus. While there are still many unknowns with the pandemic, our network has the structure and our teams have the experience and expertise to continue serving the needs of patients and families throughout Northern California.”

The TriPLICATE

The Crescent City Police Department is re-implementing a program they hope will reforge a partnership with the community while reducing crime — the Crime Free Multi-Housing Program.

Police Chief Richard Griffin told the City Council at their Oct. 5 meeting the program was first implemented years ago under by Chief Douglas Plack, but fell by the wayside for various issues. “When I first came on, this was one of my first priorities,” Griffin said. “I wanted to bring it back because I know what good it did back then.”

Sergeant Justin Gill, who used to run the program, said the basics of the program is it’s a partnership between the CCPD, tenants and landlords to create a safe environment for everybody.

“It makes it easier to deal with problem children. It makes landlords more accountable to make apartments a better place to live, dealing with normal things like lighting, locks, fire alarms, stuff like that that a lot of people overlook,” Gill explained.

Griffin said he was excited to bring the program back, believing it won’t cost his department more than overtime costs for training and implementing the program and producing signs for facilities that complete it.

“We’ve been doing an excellent job this year and I believe in cutting overtime costs,” Griffin said. “This requires an initial training for landlords of eight hours. I expect the costs to be minimal and covered by the department’s existing budget.”

Gill, too, was excited Griffin made it a priority to bring back the Crime Free Multi-Housing Program.

“I saw firsthand how it impacted the community. This is community-oriented policing at its core. This is the philosophy of the police department. For us and our officers, this is a great time to bring it back because we really want to be involved,” Gill said.

The Crime Free Multi-Housing Program starts with eight-hour training designated for apartment owners, management and their management team. As a trained facilitator, Gill walks them through safety protocols, roles of law enforcement, landlord-tenant disputes, fire safety and much more.

“We really get them up to speed and give them the empowerment they need to be present and be well-trained apartment managers, showing them how we can help them and how they can help us as law enforcement,” Gill said.

After the training, they do a Crime Prevention Thorough Environmental Design, where law enforcement goes out to apartment communities and walks with apartment owners and managers to come up with ways to make that community more safe, covering lighting, ingress, egress, fencing, peepholes in doors, appropriately labeled apartments and even shrub height.

“We help them get to a point where their property is going to combat illegal activity,” Gil said.

The third and final phase is a safety social. The apartment community has a celebration, where the fire department is invited and

Sgt. Anthony Lopez and Cantine Lt. Kai help present the program to the community.

Gill said the program includes a lease addendum, which is the backbone of the program, that says if you engage in criminal activity, you can be kicked out.

Then, every time an officer responds to one of these properties, the management gets notified, such as reports of drug or heroine sales out of an apartment, allowing them to follow up on any lease violation.

The Crime Free Multi-Housing Program requires annual recertification followed by another safety social. And each community receives a big sign touting them as a member of the Crime Free Multi-Housing Program.

“It’s not an easy program,” Gill added. “We had a lot of participants last time that got certified. It just takes hard work, a time commitment and communication between apartment communities and police department.”

He said after 3-6 months of being involved in the program, calls for services went down at participating locations.

Housing Authority Director Megan Miller told the City Council she heard consistently good feedback about the program.

“They felt safer and it inspired more of a community feel. I’m just really happy it’s coming back,” Miller said.

Councilor Jason Greenough thanked them for taking on the program.

“Too often law enforcement is reactive instead of proactive,” Greenough said. “This gives us the opportunity to put it in practice, get involved in the community, to get out there and do something, rather than waiting by the radio and responding to calls.”

Elias Amezcua was sworn in as a Del Norte Sheriff's Office Deputy Oct. 2 by Sheriff Erik Apperson.

Amezcua is a graduate of the College of the Siskiyous Law Enforcement Academy.

"Deputy Amezcua has a great background and wants to serve for all the right reasons," Apperson wrote on the DNSO Facebook page. "He is community oriented and I am certain that Del Norte County will be a better place with him providing public safety to the people that live, work and visit here."

Amezcua said he simply wants to help people.

"I understand that I may be called to serve them during their worst day and my goal is to be helpful," Amezcua said.

Bigfoot Trail Youth Stewardship Project links communities along 360-mile path

The Bigfoot Trail Alliance is launching the Bigfoot Trail Youth Stewardship Project to transform the Klamath Mountains into a learning laboratory to engage elementary, middle and high school students in experiential/ place-based learning about watersheds, ecosystems, biodiversity, fire ecology and climate change.

Michael Kauffmann, board president of the Bigfoot Trail Alliance, will serve as the Project Director will work with regional nonprofits to creating a durable framework that establishes relationships between interested regional partners.

Currently six nonprofits are part of the team, including the Watershed Research & Training Center in Hayfork, Trinity Together in Weaverville, Scott Valley Watershed Council, Salmon River Restoration Council in Sawyer’s Bar, Mid Klamath Watershed Council in Orleans and Smith River Alliance in Hiouchi.

Phase I has been generously funded by the S.H. Cowell Foundation, whose work is organized around a place-based grantmaking that improves the quality of life for children and families in small, rural communities in Northern California.

“I am excited to be a part of this project and see what educational needs arise from our survey,” said Kauffmann. “In addition to creating new standards-based curriculum, we will provide youth with place-based education. The classroom learning and field-based experiences will enhance student’s environmental literacy and relationship to other communities across the Klamath Mountains.”

Joshua Smith, the Watershed Stewardship Program Director at the Hayfork Watershed Research and Training Center, said the similar communities in the Klamath Mountain region separated by great distances across rugged mountains are connected by the unique forests, wild rivers and amazing trails.

“We partner with many of these NGO’s on regional fire, fisheries and water projects and this project will be one more way to bring our organizations and communities closer together to achieve our ecological and community health goals,” Smith said.

One of the linkages across this vast landscape is a long-distance hiking trail. The Bigfoot Trail is a 360-mile pathway created in 2009 using existing trails and roads, linked together to celebrate the regional biodiversity in the Klamath Mountains. The route has the potential to connect these rural communities both physically and psychically by building a network of groups interested in relationship building between young people from the communities and the wilderness around them while also introducing vocational possibilities to youth across the region.

“I’m excited to build on curriculum we already have in place and develop new curriculum for our communities,” said Carol Earnest, Community & Stewardship Program Director at the Mid Klamath Watershed Council.

“There is potential to develop citizen science projects that students across the Klamath Mountains can share with each other and learn more about other communities.”

“This is a unique opportunity to connect non-profits across the region through project-based curriculum and outdoor experiences,” added Patty McCleary, the executive director of the Smith River Alliance. “I am excited to support it, watch it develop and positively impact our region’s youth.”

To participate in the Bigfoot Trail Youth Stewardship Project need’s assessment, go to www.bigfoottrail.org and follow the survey link or contact Michael Kauffmann at bfta@bigfoottrail.org to get involved or ask questions.

City staff presents plan to reopen municipal pool

City Council to wait until after election to see if sale tax increase passes to pay for operation costs

By DAVID HAYES
The TriPLICATE

City Councilors are encouraging city staff to get the ball rolling on as much of its plan to reopen Fred Endert Municipal Pool, rather than waiting to see if Measure S passes on election day Nov. 3.

Technically, the pool could reopen now with strict guidelines under the state’s Blueprint for a Safer Economy as Del Norte County is currently in the orange moderate tier.

Recreation Director Holly Wendt said in her presentation to the councilors Oct. 5 counties that are in the orange moderate and yellow minimal categories — the third and fourth tiers — can reopen indoor pools under tight regulations and restrictions.

“For us, the Fred Endert Municipal Pool can only be open when Del Norte is in the minimal yellow or in the moderate orange category,” Wendt said. “We’ve worked hard and done a lot of research and participated in a lot of meetings to come up with a reopening plan.”

However, the pool was kept closed as one of city’s cost-cutting measures to address a projected $800,000 loss for the 2020-21 fiscal year due to less revenue coming in during the pandemic. City Manager Eric Wier explained the pool costs the city between $220,000 to $250,000 to keep open. He added a problem could arise if the county’s position on the reopening tier changes for the worse, forcing another closure.

“To stay in the moderate, we have to estimate less than a case a day, or seven cases in a week,” Wier said. “You know that we’ve been sort of

The Fred Endert Municipal Pool has remained closed through out the COVID-19 pandemic for financial and safety reasons.

right on the edge of this. We might have four cases in a week, we might have seven, we might have eight. There have been times we’ve gone over in the red, but you have to stay in red for two weeks in order to get classified as substantial. If we end up in red, the pool must close for a minimum of two weeks.”

Wier asked Councilors to consider the costs of re-shutting down the pool in that scenario and urged them to wait until staff could present a proposed amendment to the city’s budget in November after voters weighed in on the proposed 1 percent sales tax increase under Measure S.

“If we push it back to that Nov. 16 meeting for that decision, we would reopen some time maybe mid January if the numbers and scenario looks like that is the best course to take,” Wier said.

In response, Mayor Blake Inscore said he believes staff can get reopening plans in motion without waiting for Council approval to begin.

“If we can do some free work on this, maybe we can set the first of the year, not the middle of January,” Inscore said. “When I hear the middle of January, I immediately say, ‘Oh, it’ll be February then.’ Stuff just gets pushed.”

Wendt outlined the reopening plan:

- Only 27 or fewer swimmers will be allowed in the facility at a time while maintaining social distancing, unless with family groups.

- Patrons will be asked to shower before coming to the pool since locker rooms and showers will be closed.
- Entry will be through the front entrance while wearing a face covering, and exit through the side door.
- The slide, sauna and spa will remained closed.
- Recreation and family swims will remained closed.
- Reservations will be needed for lap swimmers, one swimmer per lane.
- Two lap lanes will be reserved for swimmers with disabilities, needing physical therapy or for the elderly.
- Aerobics classes of only 10 at a time will be offered with instructors teaching from the deck. Patrons must bring their own equipment.

- Youth swim lessons will also be offered with instructors teaching from the deck. Children under a blue swim school level will be required to have a parent in the water with them, to maintain social distancing for instructors. Those at higher levels can swim without a parent.

To reopen, Wendt said the number of lifeguards would need to be increased — a minimum of three during regular hours and more during lessons and activities. Lifeguards need to be re-certified and retrained under COVID-19 specific guidelines. This process should take six to eight weeks, Wendt said.

Inscore said after the presentation the city could raise its fees to cover operation costs, but that would price out many residents from using the pool. He added that’s why he supports Measure S, which would generate funds to keep open the pool, in addition for Crescent City Fire & Rescue, the police department and road maintenance.

“We’re going to have to have a long term sustainable plan. Yes, we can generate more revenue by raising the costs. That’s what other communities and other municipal pools have done,” Inscore said. “The unfortunate thing, from my perspective, is raising the cost puts a disproportionate burden on the low-income community.”

The undersigned or its predecessor caused said Notice of Default and Election to Sell to be recorded in the county where the real property is located. NOTICE TO POTENTIAL BIDDERS: If you are considering bidding on this property lien, you should understand that there are risks involved in bidding at a trustee auction. You will be bidding on a lien, not on the property itself. Placing the highest bid at a trustee auction does not automatically entitle you to free and clear ownership of the property. You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority, and size of outstanding liens that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same lender may hold more than one mortgage or deed of trust on the property. NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNER: The sale date shown on this notice of sale may be postponed one or more times by the mortgagee, beneficiary, trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924g of the California Civil Code. The law requires that information about trustee sale postponements be made available to you and to the public, as a courtesy to those not present at the sale. Information about postponements that are very short in duration or that occur close in time to the scheduled sale may not immediately be reflected in the telephone information or on the Internet Web site. Purportedly known as: 435 LEIF CIRCLE, CRESCENT CITY, CALIFORNIA, 95531 The sale will be held at: THE LOBBY OF THE BUILDING LOCATED AT 124 HWY 101 NORTH, CRESCENT CITY, CA 95531 Per the Secretary, the estimated opening bid will be $127,908.62. There will be no proration of taxes, rents or other income or liabilities, except that the purchaser will pay, at or before closing, his pro rata share of any real estate taxes that have been paid by the Secretary to the date of the foreclosure sale. When making their bids, all bidders, except the Secretary, must submit a deposit totaling ten percent (10%) of the Secretary's estimated bid amount in the form of a certified check or cashier's check made payable to the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development. Ten percent of the estimated bid amount for this sale is $12,790.87. A deposit need not accompany each oral bid. If the successful bid is oral, a deposit of $12,790.87 must be presented before the bidding is closed. The deposit is nonrefundable. The remainder of the purchase price must be delivered within 30 days of the sale or at such other time as the Secretary may determine for good cause shown, time being of the essence. This amount, like the bid deposits, must be delivered in the form of a certified or cashier's check. If the Secretary is the highest bidder, he need not pay the bid amount in cash. The successful bidder will pay all conveying fees, all real estate and other taxes that are due on or after the delivery date of the remainder of the payment and all other costs associated with the transfer of title. At the conclusion of the sale, the deposits of the unsuccessful bidders will be returned to them. The Secretary may grant an extension of time within which to deliver the remainder of the payment. All extensions will be for 15-day increments for a fee of: $500.00, paid in advance. The extension fee shall be in the form of a certified or cashier's check made payable to the Secretary. If the high bidder closes the sale prior to the expiration of any extension period, the unused portion of the extension fee shall be applied toward the amount due. If the high bidder is unable to close the sale within the required period, or within any extensions of time granted by the Secretary, the high bidder may be required to forfeit the cash deposit or, at the election of the Foreclosure Commissioner after consultation with the HUD representative, will be liable to HUD for any costs incurred as a result of such failure. The Commissioner may, at the direction of the HUD representative, offer the property to the second highest bidder for an amount equal to the highest price offered by that bidder. There is no right of redemption, or right of possession based upon a right of redemption, in the mortgagor or others subsequent to a foreclosure completed pursuant to the Act. Therefore, the Foreclosure Commissioner will issue a Deed to the purchaser(s) upon receipt of the entire purchase price in accordance with the terms of the sale as provided herein. HUD does not guarantee that the property will be vacant. The scheduled foreclosure sale shall be cancelled or adjourned if it is established, by documented written application or otherwise, that the default or defaults upon which the foreclosure is based did not exist at the time of service of this Notice of Default and Foreclosure Sale, or all amounts due under the mortgage agreement are tendered to the Foreclosure Commissioner, in the form of a certified or cashier's check payable to the Secretary, before public auction of the property is completed. The amount that must be paid if the Mortgage Deed of Trust is to be reinstated prior to the scheduled sale is based on the nature of the breach, this loan is not subject to reinstatement. A total payoff is required to cancel the foreclosure sale, or the breach must otherwise be cured, if applicable. A description of the default is as follows: FAILURE TO PAY THE PRINCIPAL BALANCE WHICH BECAME ALL DUE AND PAYABLE BASED UPON THE DEATH OF ALL MORTGAGORS AND THE PROPERTY IS NOT THE PRINCIPAL RESIDENCE OF AT LEAST ONE SURVIVING BORROWER. Tender of payment by certified or cashier's check or application for cancellation of the foreclosure sale shall be submitted to the address of the Foreclosure Commissioner provided below. FAMILY FRIEND FEARS
YOUNG WOMAN IS ADDICTED TO METH

DEAR ABBY: The 22-year-old daughter of close friends of ours has been living in a van during the pandemic. Her parents, my husband and I heard her on her cellphone talking about a party where her friends were doing meth. No one reacted except me. I said, "That's terrifying!" and she answered, "Right?"

I cannot stop worrying about this young woman, who I have watched grow since she was a baby. The red spots on her face, which I had assumed were from acne, now haunt me. What can I do?

I had offered her the use of our driveway, if needed, but I don't want meth users here because I have two college-age sons, so now I regret even that. I feel since she broached the topic she was asking for help. Her mom let it completely slide. Help! -- SICK WITH WORRY IN COLORADO

DEAR SICK: The baby you watched grow up is now an adult. If you think she was asking for help because she is addicted to methamphetamine, talk to her and offer to help her get it. IF she says she wants to move her van to your property, explain that as long as she is using and/or partying with contemporaries who do, the offer is off the table.

As to her parents who, from what you wrote, appear to be clueless, tell them you are alarmed and why, and urge them to go online and educate themselves about the symptoms of meth addiction, which include facial sores.

DEAR ABBY: I have a wonderful husband. He is very outgoing, and I would like to think of myself as the same, but I work hard. He always makes plans for the weekends, but sometimes I just want to stay home, relax and get the house in order. The problem is, he insists we go and do something like day or overnight trips hours away every weekend. I encourage him to go visit our friends because I know I can trust him, and I need some alone time! Am I wrong for that? -- PEACEFUL AND STILL

DEAR PEACEFUL: You are not wrong. You are entitled to your feelings as your husband is to his. Things should not always have to be his way. The two of you need to work out a compromise. (Compromise is the secret ingredient in happy marriages.) If he feels the need to get away and it doesn't bother you because you trust him, you should be entitled to time at home to get the place -- and your head -- straight.

DEAR ABBY: I am my husband's second wife. His first wife died of cancer eight years ago. His late wife's mother still calls him her son-in-law and introduces him as such. She also asks him to help her with things around the house, like getting mulch and remodeling the bath. She invites all of us over to holidays, but I can't help but feel awkward. Am I overreacting? Shouldn't she find someone else to help her now that bond is broken? -- IN

DEL NORTE TRIPLICATE & CURRY COASTAL PILOT
THE PRESENT IN INDIANA
DEAR IN THE PRESENT:
If the bond were broken, your husband's former mother-in-law would find someone else, and your husband would help her to do it. He may still feel like a member of that family. Please be smart and less defensive. The woman is making an effort to include you in her celebrations. Accept the gesture for what it is and be gracious.
