ANSWERS TO FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS

- How much will it cost to enter the park?
  - Admission is free, although there will be costs associated with food and beverages, sports equipment rentals, retail and certain events. Coolers are allowed, but no transport devices (other than wheelchairs) larger than a child’s wagon are permitted.

- Can I bring food and drink into the park?
  - Visitors may bring their own food and soft drinks (no glass bottles), though they are encouraged to take advantage of the on-site eateries.

- What about pets?
  - No pets other than service animals are allowed in play areas unless otherwise authorized. This policy excludes people walking or running with dogs through the park via Tulsa River Parks’ trail system or folks doing the same on the Midland Valley Trail, which skirts the park and dips between the north and south land bridges over Riverside Drive. Gathering Place will have programming specific to pets at designated times.

- Can I bring alcoholic beverages into the park?
  - No. Beer and other alcoholic drinks will be sold at several park venues.

- Is the park Wi-Fi friendly?
  - Visitors will be able to connect to a network in park buildings, but there is no parkwide Wi-Fi.

- Will I be able to enjoy Gathering Place at night?
  - By all means. The standard operating hours will be from 9 a.m. to 10 p.m., though that window may be adjusted for inclement weather, Park Director Tony Moore said.

- What are the entrances to the park?
  - There are 21 major and minor points of entry, according to Moore. They are located near parking areas and walking and cycling arrival points.

- Will there be a mother’s room?

The Lodge also has a family restroom that can accommodate a nursing mother and child.
