

Unmasked in the Legislature

At least 61 members of the New Hampshire House — all Republicans — showed up for their Organization Day meeting in early December without face masks, ignoring University of New Hampshire policy, a Durham town ordinance and Gov. Chris Sununu's executive order about masks.

At least two state representatives later came down with COVID-19, although it can't be known for certain where they contracted the disease.

One, House Speaker Dick Hinch, who wore a mask throughout the session, died a week later.

The unmasked lawmakers, with their hometowns and the number of times they have been elected, included:
