

Children are experiencing gun violence in school at increasing rates

Most students will never experience a shooting at their school. Shootings in schools were relatively stable for years after Columbine but have increased dramatically in recent years.

— Children who have experienced gun violence in their schools

