

Missouri faces drought conditions

The northern part of Boone County faces abnormally dry conditions associated with lower river levels and parched landscaping. The southern part is in a moderate drought, putting it at risk for burn bans and smaller crop yield.

