

One-on-one complimentary design services

The Foyer is a new furniture and home decor store in Chesterfield that puts a unique spin on home decorating with design services for free.

"It's what sets us apart from other home décor stores," said owner Carrie Keipp.

The way they do it is unique as well because they close the store on Mondays for appointments and create new looks with their customers in the store. Customers are asked to take pictures and measurements of the space they need help with, whether it be a giant wall, the area behind their couch, a fireplace mantel or a dining room tablescape.

Designer Chantell Gibson then can create a customized new look. Customers, also take part in the process offering their preferences in color and style and choosing items that give them a sense of how they want their own space to look and feel. They can also see how the design is put together so they can recreate it when they take it home. Staff at The Foyer also work within the customer's budget.

The design team works with items that can be purchased from the store, but if a customer has a special piece to incorporate into the design, they will be happy to work with it.

The personalized one-on-one design services is just one way The Foyer puts their customers first.

In addition to home décor and gifts, The Foyer also features a whole array of furniture.

"Our goal is that customers leave here with something that expresses who they are and sets their home apart from everyone else's," Keipp said.
