New location, same family craftsmanship

Duenke Cabinet Company has been a trusted name in custom cabinetry and kitchen and bath remodeling since 1953. While longtime customers may have noticed a recent move, one thing has not changed: Duenke Cabinets is still family-owned and operated by Jim Schmidt and his sons, delivering the same quality craftsmanship and personal service it has for decades.

Founded by Roy Duenke, Jim purchased the company 29 years ago, having worked alongside Duenke for nearly two decades before becoming the owner. Jim has been in the cabinet industry since 1961 and is a Certified Kitchen Designer and cabinet maker. His sons, Ron and Keith Schmidt, play integral roles in the family-run business. Ron, a Kansas State University graduate with a degree in architecture, designs kitchens, bathrooms and custom cabinetry and oversees the company's locally built cabinet line. Keith manages installation projects and customer service, ensuring each project is completed with precision and care.

After renting a building in Manchester for 60 years, the company recently moved to optimize costs and maintain its ability to deliver value to its customers. Today, the Schmidt family operates a showroom in Ballwin and a cabinet shop located in a newly built, company-owned facility in Robertsville. Duenke Cabinet Co. continues to build its cabinets locally, allowing customers to receive truly custom cabinetry, often at pricing comparable to standard or semi-custom options.

Duenke remains a full-service kitchen and bath dealer, working from initial design through installation. The locations may be new, but the commitment to quality and family craftsmanship remains unchanged.
