

Dermatology practice now open in Chesterfield

For Dr. Sarah Jensen opening her second Regional Dermatology practice is something of a homecoming.

A West St. Louis County resident, Dr. Jensen is a board certified dermatologist and dermatopathologist who opened her first location 14 years ago in Jefferson County. Today, people of all ages can benefit from her patient-centric approach to medical and cosmetic dermatology at her new Chesterfield location.

Dr. Sarah Jensen

"I think patients want a doctor who will listen and hear what their desire is in regard to treatment or prevention," Dr. Jensen said. "For myself, I tend to seek out integrated care. There are centuries of tradition behind using natural paths to healing, wellness and aging. There's also been tremendous advances in allopathic, or western medicine. I want to give my clients the best of both."

She welcomes patients with a wide range of dermatological skin conditions and noted that even people with apparently healthy skin can benefit from dermatology.

In terms of prevention, Dr. Jensen said dermatologists can provide valuable advice on how to moisturize, check for skin issues and best protect it from the sun. Dermatology can also address some of the psychological issues related to skin and appearance. Her goal is to help her patients feel their best in their skin – and do so in a timely manner.

"We try very hard to make our practice accessible and convenient," Dr. Jensen said. "I'm a patient too of my doctors and I want someone who listens, I don't like to wait, I want timely responses. We work really hard to make sure that our patients receive the care we would want for ourselves."
