

Making outdoor spaces shine year round

With more than 25 years in business and eight years under the ownership of Tim Sostak, Outdoor Lighting Perspectives has illuminated more than 7,000 homes across the St. Louis region. The company specializes in architectural landscape lighting, offering a comprehensive, start-to-finish approach.

"We're an all-in provider," Tim said. "We handle the design, installation and ongoing service. Our focus is to ensure the lighting system lasts as long as the home."

While the classic warm white glow remains timeless, Tim noted growing interest in color-changing landscape lighting and permanent roofline lighting. The roofline systems replace traditional holiday lights with programmable LED lighting that can be customized for any season or special occasion.

"You can choose any color and change motion patterns," he said. "It's amazing what you can do with them."

One client even created a "Frozen"-themed light pattern with his granddaughters that has been adopted by the manufacturer as a preset option.

Outdoor Lighting Perspectives serves a wide range of homeowners, from those looking to enhancing curb appeal to clients investing in their forever homes. Designers work closely with homeowners to highlight the areas of their home and yard they value most. Outdoor lighting is designed for year-round enjoyment, even from indoors during winter months.

The company installs lighting systems year-round and offers free design consultations, phased project planning, and service for existing systems, even those installed by other providers. Lighting also adds safety, security and resale value. What truly sets the company apart is its long-term, full-service commitment.

"Having dedicated certified technicians who can support your system long term makes all the difference," Tim said.
