

Turning test prep into measurable results

From left: Instructor Michelle McGhee, Instructor Tim Dix, Student Siddhartha Subbella with a perfect ACT score and Director David Huguelet

For families navigating the competitive college admissions process, Huntington Learning Center offers a structured, data-driven approach to academic support with test preparation. For more than a decade, the Chesterfield/Ellisville Huntington center has helped students produce measurable results through individualized instruction and proven strategies.

Huntington's test prep program includes the ACT, SAT, SSAT and ASVAB. Every student begins with a full-length practice exam administered at the center. That diagnostic does not get reported anywhere. Instead it generates detailed data that instructors use to design a personalized plan targeting each student's strengths and weaknesses.

"We get about ten pages of data from our practice test," owner David Huguelet said. "That allows us to be very specific about what students need to do in order to get their best score possible."

Instruction is one-on-one, typically over a 10- to 12-week period. Most students attend twice per week, alternating between English/reading and math/science. Nationwide, Huntington students average a 5.4-point increase on their ACT, with local results often exceeding that benchmark.

Beyond admissions, higher test scores can translate directly into increased scholarships. "We can often move a student from a score of 25 to a 30," David said. "That kind of improvement can double or triple automatic scholarship awards overnight."

In addition to test prep, Huntington Learning Center offers academic skills programs for students kindergarten through 12th grade, as well as subject-specific tutoring for advanced high school courses. At Huntington the instructors meet students where they are, challenge them appropriately and equip them with skills that open doors, both now and in the future.

1370 Clarkson Clayton Center • Ellisville

(636) 536-7800

huntingtonhelps.com