Jewelry isn't just a purchase. The process of choosing the perfect piece that will stand the test of time and be passed down for generations takes time, expertise and dedication.

At Barry Hyatt Jeweler, staff members take pride in working with each customer individually to make sure they walk away with the perfect piece. With a legacy initially started by jeweler Barry Hyatt, the business is now run by David Hyatt and sister Jennifer Hyatt Kuhlmann, who have been involved in the family business since childhood and bring years of experience to an already seasoned staff.

Barry Hyatt Jeweler sells and services a wide array of both precious and semi-precious gemstones, as well as pieces in an array of metals and finishes.

Engagement and wedding rings are their specialty. They sell traditional and non-traditional styles, and for customers who want something all their own, they are able to custom manufacture rings to make those truly one of a kind pieces. They can also create other unique jewelry with existing stones, a great way to give a heritage piece new life.

"All setting and finishing touches and procedures are done on-site and in-house," David said.

When it comes to helping you find the perfect piece – or even cleaning or repairing your existing pieces – David and Jennifer understand the value of a hands-on approach.

"You walk in, and we will personally wait on you," Jennifer said.

"I treat each and every person who walks through the door like a family member," David said.

Stop by anytime. Their inventory is constantly rotating, so there's always a reason to come back.
