

Independent jeweler with something for everyone

Barry Hyatt Jeweler is a family-owned, full service jewelry business with over five decades of experience.

In addition to selling new and estate jewelry, their staff of skilled jewelers perform in-house repairs, can design custom pieces, and upcycle outdated jewelry into new creations that keep the original sentiment.

"Of the many joys of shopping at Barry Hyatt Jeweler, two things stand out: our customer friendly environment and a broad variety of stylish pieces," said Jen Hyatt Kuhlmann, who co-owns Barry Hyatt Jeweler with her brother, David. "We have wonderful jewelry – fun, trendy, elegant, and wearable – that fit everyone's taste and budget."

"While we have a great selection of in-stock jewelry and watches, if a customer cannot find what they want, we will do whatever we can to locate it or make it," Jen said.

A key reason for their continued success is that Jen and David truly care about their customers, just like their father, Barry Hyatt, did.

"People have great memories of buying jewelry here and interacting with him. That's what we want to carry on – his legacy of customer service," Jen said. "It gives me a thrill when customers come in and share stories of our dad or bring in jewelry he stamped with the company logo. In the course of our nearly 60 years in business, we have been privileged to have many customers become treasured friends."

Over the years, Barry Hyatt's customers have purchased nearly all of their jewelry for special occasions and everyday wear, from Barry, David or Jen.

"We want our customers to be extremely happy with their purchase," Jen said. "We want them to say, 'Barry Hyatt Jeweler is my jewelry store for life!'"
