West County resident Lisa O. Stump, president of Lashly & Baer, P.C., focuses her law practice on the areas of governmental and public institutions, including education. She is proud to represent local entities including the Rockwood School District and the St. Louis County Library among others.

“The best part of my job is working with clients who are serving their communities and who want to do what’s best for their constituents,” Stump said.

Stump advises her clients on issues including governance, ethics, contracts and procurement, governmental immunity, public employment, taxation and bond issues, the use of public monies, elections and public record laws.

“For me the key to being a truly successful attorney is achieving the right balance between serving your clients and serving your family and community,” Lisa said.

An involved member of the West County community, Lisa has served on numerous civic and nonprofit boards and commissions, including the Town & Country Clayton Road Task Force and as an Elder at Bonhomme Presbyterian Church. Currently, Lisa is involved with one of the church’s key missions, the El Centro Integral orphanage in Honduras.

She believes being a good attorney requires hard work, the ability to accept responsibility and the desire to be proactive in getting the work done.
