

Independence for seniors delivered at home

Sarah and Josh Beers, owners

For many senior citizens, the idea of aging or recovering at home is not a preference; it is a priority. Family Home Care Services of Missouri was built around that reality, offering an in-home care model designed to protect independence and quality of life for clients across the state.

Owners Josh and Sarah Beers understand that desire firsthand. Josh first entered the home care field in his mid-20s, placing an online ad offering transportation and assistance for seniors and people with disabilities. He stepped away to build a career in corporate financial management, but felt a strong pull to return to serving older adults. In 2023, he and his wife Sarah re-entered the industry together, combining business expertise with personal experience.

Family Home Care Services provides flexible, customized care plans ranging from short weekly visits to full-time, live-in support for seniors, individuals with disabilities and clients needing post-hospital care.

"Clients can remain in their home," Josh said. "They can remain in charge of their life and, most importantly, keep their independence."

As Director of Client Care, Sarah works closely with families to ensure care is compassionate and personal. Having cared for her own grandmother, she sees how important independence is to quality of life.

"That is the purpose of what we do," she said. "Helping our clients feel like they still have a big voice and get to make their own choices."

Caregivers are insured, state-registered and regularly audited.

"We are a big family and have the big family vibe and we carry that into our business," Sarah said.
