Franklin Farmers Market offers gifts galore

BY JODI RALL

The Franklin Farmers Market will be open this Saturday and again on Christmas Eve to help you with last minute gifts and treats for your holiday table. Although some of our farmers are gone for winter, there are still plenty of farms and artisan businesses for you to shop at. Below is a small sampling for your shopping pleasure.

Beaverdam Creek Farm — Organic corneal for cornbread stuffing, grits, and want fresh muffins on Christmas morning? They have you covered with several options. These also make a great gift for someone too.

Bloomsbury Farm Wreaths — Beautiful evergreen and magnolia wreaths for your home. They are simply gorgeous.

Blue Honey Farm — Handmade painted baskets that are handwoven. Truly an artisan, these would make gifts to treasure.

Cutting Boards by Cody — A market favorite, beautiful handmade Cutting Boards from Cody's Woodworks.

Emily Newman Fine Art — Has beautiful paintings available for sale that would make the perfect gift for an art lover.

Mark Alan Artisan Woods — Reclaimed wood trays that are handmade and will showcase your holiday food in such a unique and inspiring way. Wood products with strong character, special creations, and unique originals.

N Harmony Jewelry — Some of the jewelry is made from guitar strings. Gorgeous sets with necklaces and earrings to match. Such a great place to purchase a gift.

Noble Springs Goat Farm — For your table or as a gift they sell the finest goat cheese in spreads, feta and even a cheddar (when not sold out). They have a cute little goat book and other gift items too.

Remedy Bone Broth — Cheers to Good
