Dear Editor of WPSD Local 6:

In November 2017 I sent an anonymous letter to attorney Alisha Kay Bobo and Lisa Bobo using incredibly insensitive and disparaging language. I wish now to publicly apologize for my outrageous conduct.

I have gone to (retired) Judge Craig Clymer for counsel and guidance. Judge Clymer made it clear to me that he is friends with the Bobos and thinks highly of them. He would not attempt to defend my indefensible act, but agreed to counsel me as my attorney and act as a conduit to express my remorse and take responsibility for what I have done.

I understand that my action was extremely hurtful; not only to the Bobos, but to an entire community. I have ridiculed an entire population's dearly-held beliefs. In doing so I have embarrassed myself, my family and my friends.

I want to be perfectly clear. I have no excuse for my conduct. I offer this public apology to them and to the community. I hope that they will, perhaps in time, find the grace to accept my apology and begin to heal from the pain I have caused.

I can absolutely understand if those I hurt are unable to forgive me. Having made and paid for serious mistakes before, this eighty-year-old son of a Baptist minister has for the past twenty years attempted to earn back the respect of his community. Now, in a thoughtless moment, I have jeopardized my years of effort.

I truly apologize to everyone I have hurt.
